British Forces in Terrific Attack Smash German Trenches Over a Front of Four Miles

By SIDNEY B. CAVE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, July 14.—Driving forward with the momentum of a battering ram the British forces on the Somme front have broken the second line defences of the Germans over a front of four miles.

Official announcement of this important gain was made by the War Office in its official report issued at noon.

For twenty-four hours the German positions had been bombarded with utmost violence by British guns of all calibres before the infantry attacks were launched. Then the English legions rolled forward in irresistible waves, overrunning the blasted trenches which had been reduced by shells to a series of irregular craters.

Between the Ancre and Somme rivers the British pressure has been concentrated along the Albert-Bapaume highway and the Bray-Bapaume road, and it was in this region that the most powerful assaults were delivered.

BAPAUME THE OBJECTIVE.

The German troops in front of Bapaume, the immediate objective of the British drive, have fought stubbornly to hold their lines, being under orders to fight to the death, but they have been unable to withstand the sledgehammer blows of General Haig's men.

Fighting of the most furious character marked the conflict to the northeast of Mametz wood, where the Germans tried to stem the British with curtains of artillery fire and counter attacks. It was at this point that the British lines approach most closely to the important road running through Combles in a northerly direction and bisecting both the Bray-

Zeppelin Liners to Cross Ocean as Deutschland

Baltimore, July 14.

CITY officials who visited the Deutschland today quoted Captain Koenig as saying that Zeppelin airship freighters are being built in Germany for transatlantic service.

"To you," Captain Koenig was quoted as saying, "the trip of the Deutschland is a great achievement. You must not be too enthusiastic over it, for a bigger surprise is coming. A great Zeppelin airship, or maybe I should say airships, are being built in Germany. In the not distant future one or more of them will sail through the air to the United States. Just as sure as the Deutschland came to America, so will the Zeppelins come."

VILLA DEMANDS SURRENDER OF CHIHUAHUA

El Paso, July 14.—Pancho Villa has sent an ultimatum to General Trevino at Chihuahua City, demanding the surrender of the city, according to the reports received here today.

If the town is not turned over at the approach of his forces he threatens to sack it and execute the officers.

After a conference with General Bell today General Francisco Gonzales, the Juarez commander, set aside General Trevino's peremptory order not to allow supplies to be shipped to the Pershing expedition.

The train of foodstuffs, which has been held at Juarez for twenty-four hours, left there at noon. General Bell declined to state what representations he has made.

Villa has achieved another overwhelming defeat of Carrancistas south of Parral, General George Bell, Jr., has learned.

While details of the fight have been suppressed by Mexican censors, it is believed the Carranza force was that led by General Domingo Tarrietta and General Matias Ramos, numbering 2,000 troops, which had been dispatched to reinforce General Ernesto Garcia after his defeat by Villa Wednesday.

Federal Government Orders Coast Guard to Kill Of Man-Eaters; Give Directions for the Hunt

By International News Service.

Washington, July 14.—Two departments of the United States government were this afternoon given orders to aid in the fight to exterminate the man-eating sharks that have been attacking and killing bathers along the New Jersey coast recently.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo issued orders to the entire coast guard force along the North Atlantic coast to join the fight. Besides killing all the sharks they can find the coast guards employes will place bait at different places in the ocean in effort to attract the man-eating fish away from the shore.

Secretary of Commerce Redfield instructed the Bureau of Fisheries to obtain and publish all the information it could relating to how the sharks may be killed or driven off.

Within a very short time the bureau issued a statement saying:

"The most obvious suggestion is that an attempt be made to catch the sharks either by trolling from boats or by means of baited sharkhooks."

Officials declared that no reason exists for a panic at bathing resorts, but advise that all bathers stay close to the shore for the present.

Find the Body of Shark's Victim

Matawan, N. J., July 14.—The body of Lester Stillwell, victim of a man-eating shark, was recovered today from Matawan Creek. Great, jagged wounds in the abdomen and breast showed where the shark's teeth had closed over the twelve-year-old boy's body.

Harry au Clies, an engineer on the Jersey Central Railroad, and William R. Clayton, Jr., who had been patrolling the bank of the creek, saw the body rise not more than 400 feet from where Stillwell was attacked Wednesday. They pulled the body ashore and summoned the county physician.

It was their theory that the shark must have been about twelve or fifteen feet long and the location of the wounds showed, in their belief, that the fish seized the boy across the middle of the body, rather than striking at his feet and legs. All other cases of attack by sharks so far reported

VICTIM IS NATICK MAN

Alfred M. Champney Is Stricken with Plague and Brought to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital

The first case of infantile paralysis was brought to Boston today, when Alfred M. Champney, thirty-five years old, of 94 1-2 Pond street, Natick, was taken to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, suffering from the disease.

Champney's case is not serious, according to the doctors who are attending him, although a large array of specialists have been called in and are watching the case.

The first known about the case was when the Boston Board of Health was notified by the hospital authorities that a case of infantile paralysis had been brought them from Natick. Commissioner Mahoney and his staff at once set to work to secure facts in regard to the case. They worked in conjunction with the Natick Board of Health.

Another case of the disease has been found at Lawrence. The second victim is a child, the one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Deone of No. 12 Perkins court.

The first case, that of Joseph Donoghue, is reported to be progressing favorably.

The local health authorities believe that a family who recently moved here from Brooklyn, N. Y., brought the disease here.

Still another case has been reported at Holyoke. Rachel Cohen. Suspicious cases have also been reported at Worcester and Norwood.

An appeal has been made to Dr. Shoulder of the State Board of Health to rush physicians to the infected districts.

Birth Control Advocate Held on New Charges; Bailed by Woman

FINAL PLEA IS MADE TO SAVE WILL ORPET

Waukegan, Ill., July 14.—The question of whether Will Orpet murdered his schoolgirl sweetheart, Marian Lambert, may be given to the jury for decision late today. There was a noticeable inclination on the part of the attorneys in the case to expedite matters when the trial was resumed this morning.

"It is possible the case will go to the jury late today," said Special Prosecutor Joslyn, who is to close the State's case.

James H. Wilkerson, chief counsel for Orpet, resumed his address to the jury at the opening of court. He is making the last plea for the boy.

In his argument Mr. Wilkerson warned the jury against the wiles and arguments of the prosecutor in the hopes that his words will remain in their minds, while Mr. Joslyn is thundering his demand that Orpet be punished. He said:

"It is the duty of the prosecuting officer to find out the truth and bring it out in court. It is his duty to insinuate nothing, to distort nothing and to denounce no one, but to put the facts before the jury. Appeals to passion and prejudice are not appeals to reason. When the prosecution comes before you, not with argument but with denunciation and says that this boy is a liar and a murderer and ought to be hanged, it is not an appeal to your reason and you will resent it and reject it.

"When the prosecution endeavors to convict this defendant on one circumstance and not on all the circumstances, it is not honest and it is not fair."

Recruiting Office Wrecked by Mob of Several Hundred Which Sings Revolutionary Songs

Cork, Ireland, July 14.—Rioting Sinn Feiners wrecked the recruiting office here today and attacked military pickets in the streets. A mob of several hundred marched through the city singing revolutionary songs. They were dispersed by troops.

The rioters booed and hissed British soldiers. They had previously inscribed on the gate and pillars of the law works the words, "Up with the Republic!"

Several shots were fired outside the residence of Captain Phillips, chief of the government recruiting office, but no one was seriously injured.

Above the sign painted by the rioters was a large skull and cross-bones.

The breaking down of the second system of German defences over such a wide front is one of the severest blows the British have struck since the offensive was opened.

News of the British success created a profound impression here.

Following is the text of the War Office report:

"This morning at dawn we attacked the enemy's second line of defence. We broke into hostile positions on a front four miles wide and captured several strongly defended localities. Heavy fighting continues."

Furious Struggle in Progress, Says Berlin.

By International News Service.

Berlin, July 14.—A furious struggle between the British and Germans is in progress on the Somme front, particularly in Mametz forest and Trones woods.

The German War Office stated today that English attacks against the German positions at those points were repulsed, but that fresh assaults were immediately delivered and that the fighting continues. On the Eastern front the Russians were repulsed at Zarepche, losing 160 men in prisoners and two machine guns.

The following in the text of the official report:

"West front:—On both sides of the Somme stubborn fighting has developed. English attacks were made early this morning at Mametz forest and in the Longueval sector, while in Trones woods repeated efforts were made against our lines. The enemy suffered considerably. Last night, by a rapid attack by our reserves, the first attempts of the enemy were unanimously repulsed, but new attacks were then launched against our positions.

"The French after numerous fallures in the past few days suffered another reverse yesterday when they attacked without success in the vicinity of Barleux and West of Estrees. Neither the French nor their black

WAR SUMMARY

The British officially announced today that in new attacks against the German lines in Picardy they had broken into the German second line trenches over a four-mile front and captured a number of positions.

The official announcement, however, does not give any localities which can be found on the map, so that it is impossible to judge what the new British attack has accomplished.

The British took the German first line in their first attack, July 1-2. What they call the second line today is now the German first line and is, of course, backed by line after line of supplementary defences.

The German bombardment of Souville, at Verdun, continues on a tremendous scale, and the French expect infantry attacks there. The Verdun situation will bear watching, until the allied offensive shall have attained sufficient strength to force the Germans to abandon the attack there. So long as the Germans continue their attacks in force at Verdun, it is fair evidence that they are not worried by developments in Picardy.

For some days, now, the Russian front has seen no territorial changes. The Russians claim the capture of some 2,000 prisoners yesterday; the Germans claim the capture of 400 Russians. Neither side claims any advance.

The Italians give half their official bulletin to chronicling an attack "after artillery preparation on an immense scale" by the Austrians against the Italian positions. The attack was repulsed. In spite of her difficulties in Bukowina, where the Russians would have us believe that her entire army has been captured, killed or wounded, Austria seems able to give the Italians a good fight, and still holds her positions well into Italian territory.

allies (Africans) gained one yard of ground.

"East of the Meuse, French attempts to regain lost ground failed. Near the fortress of Souville, our curtain of fire broke down an attack. Near Nauuee woods we stopped an attempt to attack.

"On the rest of the front we repulsed many hostile patrols and enemy reconnoitring detachments. German patrols brought in prisoners west of Merkirch.

"East front on the Stokhod river line (in Volhynia) the forces of General von Linsingen made a counter attack near Zarepche. North of the Kovel-Sarny railway, which threw back the Russians advancing in this section. One hundred and sixty men and two machine guns were captured.

"Our aerial squadrons successfully attacked in the region east of the Stokhod. The enemy again penetrated our first line yesterday on the front held by General von Bothmer's troops, but were ejected by means of a counter attack and suffered considerable losses.

Germans Weaker, British Report.

By FREDERICK PALMER.

Accredited Correspondent with the British Army of the Press of the United States.

At the British Front in France, July 14.—After their methodical day by day approaches within striking distance of the second line of German defence and bringing up material and guns, the British were ready for another big attack and at 3.30 o'clock this morning infantry assaults threw to assure the taking of the villages of Longueval and Bazentin-Le-Petit, the re-taking of Trones Woods and a gain of ground beyond Contalmaison and the piercing of the second line at every point of attack.

The correspondent, who had been watching the artillery preparation through the night, was able to see as dawn came that the British were in possession of a covated ridge where German shells were bursting in an effort by the German gunners to stay the attack from progressing further.

FRENCH CHECK 2 GERMAN ATTACKS

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 14.—Although there were powerful artillery duels on the Somme and Verdun fronts last night, no infantry actions were reported by the French War Office in its official communique today.

In its allusion to the Somme front the War Office refers only to that section held by French troops and not to that part held by the British.

The French are carefully organising their new positions south of the Somme, particularly in the region of Barleux, where the Germans have made counter attacks in an effort to win back some of their lost ground.

The text of the official communique follows:

"North of the line of the region south of Villeaubois and on the plateau of Vauclerc two German attacks were immediately stopped by our machine gun fire.

"On the right bank of the Meuse the artillery duel in the sector of Souville continued with violence. There were some patrol engagements in Chenois wood.

"No important event occurred on the rest of the front."

NIGHT DASH BY U-BOAT EXPECTED AGAIN

New York, July 14.—That the supersubmarine Deutschland will make its dash for Germany tomorrow night is the belief expressed in Baltimore advices today.

Extra stevedores were put to work loading the cargo of nickel and rubber and every effort is being made to have the submersible fully loaded by tomorrow. It was learned that when the submersible leaves she will have on board a complete cargo and will not stop at another American port.

The U-liner Bremen, the second of Germany's fleet of submarine merchantmen, is believed to be near the American coast awaiting a favorable opportunity to slip by the British cruisers that have been patrolling off the coast of New York since the arrival of the Deutschland at Baltimore.

Shipping agents here who are in touch with the owners of the U-liner Deutschland, said today that the Bremen would come to New York or Boston; that she would be taken care of by North German Lloyd agents, and that she might be expected to dock before July 22.

It was said that the Deutschland waited more than a week in an effort to reach this port. The vigilance of the British was so strict, however, it is said that Captain Koenig finally determined to try Baltimore or Newport News.

MAY ENTER NEW YORK.

If the Bremen meets with better fortune it is planned for her to enter the port of New York by way of Manlauk Point and Long Island Sound, past City Island and down the East River to the North German Lloyd piers in Hoboken, where preparations for her reception have been finished for several days.

Five submersible merchantmen of the Deutschland type have been completed and, following the Bremen, the Amerika is expected to reach this shores with a treasure cargo of dye stuffs and drugs.

It was learned on good authority that the cargoes carried on the return voyage of the under-sea liners will consist almost entirely of rubber with perhaps a quantity of nickel or copper that will serve as ballast.

Germany is badly in need of rubber, and German interests are said to have bought heavily in the American rubber. These purchases are said to have reached about 1,000 tons, and the Deutschland will carry as much as she safely can.

BRITISH STAND PUZZLED.

There is some puzzlement in the minds of rubber merchants here whether the shipment of rubber to Germany by the submarine would result in the re-establishment of the British embargo against firms who have kept their pledge not to sell to Germany rubber received under special license.

As the rubber the Deutschland will carry will probably be of South American origin it is doubtful whether Great Britain would use this as a reason for refusing to supply rubber to accredited firms in this country.

Allied Warships on Watch for U-Boat

Baltimore, July 14.—Allied warships are assembling off the Virginia capes here today. Two British cruisers, the Berwick class have been sighted by passing steamships, and a small French destroyer also is reported a few miles outside the three-mile limit.

Two American torpedo boats have been detailed to patrol duty along the coast, and it is said other vessels will be assigned similar duty until the Deutschland leaves port.

Captain Koenig has declared to be true the report that a fleet of Zeppelins will visit the United States shortly.

"To you the trip of the Deutschland is a wonderful thing, but to us not too enthused, for Germany will give the world a bigger surprise. There are being built in Germany several great Zeppelins and within a short time—a few months at the most—these will sail for the United States," he said to a party of city officials who paid a visit to the submarine.

He spoke with much conviction on the proposed visit of the Zeppelins.

The cargo of dyestuffs will be all put ashore today and work of loading the super-submarine with nickel and rubber has already begun. It is hinted that the Deutschland is getting ready for her dash out to sea at the psychological moment.

speakers denounced the police for arresting Allison and urged the importance of the birth control propaganda.

The various charges against Mr. Allison, each presenting a different phase of the same alleged offense, resulted in his being held in $1,150 bail, after he had pleaded not guilty.

The case was set for August 3 and Mr. John Jack, wife of a Harvard professor, furnished bail.

PROMINENT SPECTATORS.

The birth control agitation, which has just reached Boston, has attracted wide attention in New York, where Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes — among others—was prominent in a riot at a meeting where literature was distributed. Arrests were made.

That it has won many supporters in Boston was evidenced by the number and prominence of the spectators at the hearing today.

Allison came to the court today with his attorney, George Rosewer. He was arrested once before his arraignment, and again after it. Sergeant McTiernan of Station 1 prosecuted the case, and asked the postponement till August 3. The sergeant said that when the case is called seven chocolate dippers from a North End candy factory will identify Allison as a man who handed them birth control literature.

Mrs. John Jack, who furnished Allison's bail, said:

"I believe that birth control is an economic necessity, and that it will go far toward the emancipation of the working people."

Miss Florence Ben-Oliel, a young Syrian woman who has lectured throughout the country, was another spectator at the trial. Mrs. Glendower Evans of Beacon Hill was also there.

"The arrest is an outrage," said Mrs. Evans. "It is a sorrowful thing to find on the Massachusetts statute books laws which forbid the dissemination of this birth control information."

WOMEN AT SESSION.

Allison pointed to the large number of prominent people at his trial as significant evidence of the support given his propaganda.

Irving Granich, associated with Allison in the publication of "The Firebrand," was in court, and others there were the Rev. Paul Blanchard of the Boston Sex Hygiene League; B. D. Brink of the Y. M. C. A., who said he was there in the interests of free speech; President George Grover Mills of the Fabian League, and Miss Jennie Haver of that society.

Camp Wilson, San Antonio, Tex., July 14.—Unidentified snipers hidden in a clump of underbrush fired fifteen shots into the tent of Colonel Joseph B. Sanborn, commanding the First Illinois Infantry, late last night. Colonel Sanborn was uninjured. The snipers escaped. Militia officers are of the belief the snipers probably were Mexican laborers.

SMALL SKIRMISHES ON EASTERN FRONT

Salonica, July 14.—Today's official statement issued at the allies' headquarters chronicles some small engagements in the Mayadag zone, but states that there was only a cannonade on the rest of the front.

French troops started a riot this morning when refused transportation in Kavala over the railway controlled by the Anglo-French army. Five hundred men belonging to the Sixth division formed a train at the station. They were fired upon by the pickets on duty there and dispersed.

CZAR CONFERS WITH CABINET AT THE FRONT

By International News Service.

Petrograd, July 14.—Interest in the progress of the victorious Russian armies was divided here today with that directed toward the conference of the czar with all ministers and Czar Nicholas at imperial field headquarters.

This is the second time that the cabinet has been called to the front to confer with the Czar since the war broke out and it is recognized that only matters of the utmost urgency would lead to such a step.

The steady improvement in domestic affairs makes it evident that the conference relates to the conduct of the war, and there were even reports that the government is appealing to receive peace overtures from Austria-Hungary.

The two battles that developed along the Stokhod River in Volhynia, where the Germans are fighting to save Kovel, and along the lower Dvina in Galicia, where the Austro-German armies are trying to check the advance on Lemberg, continue with great stubbornness.

Intense artillery duels are reported from the Dvina front.

FEDERAL SURGEONS OFF TO NEW YORK

Washington, D. C., July 14.—Senior Surgeon Charles E. Banks of the Public Health Service, who is to direct the work of preventing the interstate spread of infantile paralysis from New York, arrived here today. After a conference with officers of the Public Health Service Dr. Banks left for New York, accompanied by Dr. William Colby Rucker, also of the Public Health Service. A vigorous campaign will be undertaken to curb the spread of the disease.

Surgeons Charles H. Garner of Buffalo and R. W. Brown of Boston were today ordered to New York to assist Dr. Banks in his work. Dr. A. W. Freeman of Cincinnati was ordered to New York to co-operate with Dr. C. H. Lavinder, who is directing the investigation work.

"We no knowledge of the so-called adrenalin treatment of infantile paralysis," Dr. Rucker said before leaving for New York. "There is no known specific, the treatment of the disease requiring careful watching on the part of the medical attendant in order that situations may be met as rapidly as they arise."

NEW HAMPSHIRE MEN ORDERED TO FRONT

Concord, N. H., July 14.—Orders were received here late last night from the headquarters of the Department of the East for the First New Hampshire Regiment to proceed at once to Laredo, Tex.

Captain Stuart, mustering officer, declared the troops would be ready to depart at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Preparations to start are now being rushed. All leaves of absence have been cancelled, and the men who have been away from camp have been recalled in a hurry.

Last night the first fatality of the local camp occurred when John Grant, twenty-four, a member of L Company of Berlin, was killed in a friendly boxing match with Corporal Deslee, twenty-one, of the same company. The fight occurred in the company's street. Grant fell after a few moments of boxing. Medical authorities say death resulted from dilation of the heart due to the excitement.

5 SHARKS TRAPPED IN BAY

have shown that the man-eaters struck for the legs of their victims.

Five man-eating sharks are trapped today in Matawan Creek, where Lester Stillwell and Stanley Fisher were killed by a shark Wednesday, and at ebb tide today it is hoped they may be captured and killed.

Norman Tice, a local contractor, and a number of others saw the sharks in the creek, and a barrier of chicken wire and planking, too stout for the sharks to break, was thrown across the creek at a point where bridge construction work has narrowed it and made it possible easily to close the last gap.

The town has offered $100 reward for the capture of any shark, dead or alive. The sighting of the sharks spurred the hunt.

Fire Chief Leo Emmons was immediately notified and the whole village was out to join the hunt. More than one hundred pounds of dynamite was discharged in the creek in an effort to bring the great fish to the surface.

The entire Jersey coast on New York Bay today is in an uproar at the discovery of the killers. Wild reports of other raids are received almost hourly. Farmers and fishermen armed with rifles and flares have arrived to take part in the hunt. Fire Chief Emmons is in charge of the attacking forces.

Say Jersey Coast Is Infested by Sharks

Keyport, N. J., July 14.—The New Jersey and Long Island coasts are infested by huge sharks that may be man-eaters, according to fishermen here.

Never before in the memory of the oldest inhabitant have the great fish been seen in so great numbers and so far inland. A general warning has been issued by bathers to stay out of local waters.

Lack of small fish, the natural food of the sharks, had driven the monsters to shallow water, according to the fishermen. The theory that a single predatory man-eater from Southern waters is to blame for the killings at Spring Lake, Beach Haven and Matawan, N. J., is scouted here.

Trawlers in from Raritan Bay and surrounding waters report sighting numerous sharks of varying length. In one instance a seven-foot shark sheared the fishing dory of George Jenkins of Keyport.

The statement of naturalists that sharks travel alone is disputed by local authorities. Captain Al Walling of Keyport, an expert swordfish hunter, today counted six shark fins about Sandy Hook—sharks, he said, were headed for shallow water.

Tells Capture of Shark at Winthrop.

The capture of a eleven-foot man-eating shark off Winthrop Beach, five years ago, is described by former United States Deputy Marshal James Ruhl, who with Captain Thomas Duffy, a Winthrop lobster fisherman, bagged the sea monster.

Ruhl was on his vacation, and one day accompanied Captain Duffy on an inspection of the latter's lobster pots some distance off shore.

They observed the water being churned into a foam near one of the pots, and approaching closer saw the tail of a shark.

The deputy managed to lasso the tail, and the rope was made fast to the captain's motor dory. Later the rope was tied about the body of the shark, and the man-eater was towed to the beach, and there killed.

A baby shark which accompanied the big shark, which was a female, was also captured.

Captain Duffy's theory was that the female had come in shore to protect its offspring, and that the same thing sent the sharks close to the New Jersey coast.

Vito Luongo, an employe in the Federal Building, told of the capture of a twelve-foot shark by men on the United States supply ship Sterling in 1907 in Barnstable Bay. Luongo was cabin boy on the ship. The shark was also a female and followed ships at target practice in the bay, probably for the food thrown overboard.

The shark was finally caught by means of a stout hook.

telegram to Washington, addressed to the Secretary of State, protesting against the "unlawful action on the part of the de facto government" in Mexico in taking possession of the property known as the Hacienda De Babicora. The telegram follows:

San Francisco, July 13, 1916.

"To the Secretary of State,

Washington, D. C.

Today's San Francisco newspapers contain the telegraphic report that the de facto government of the Republic of Mexico has taken possession of the property in the State of Chihuahua known as the Hacienda de Babicora. This property consists of a large tract of land stocked with cattle and horses. The title to the property is in the Babicora Development Company, an American corporation, the stock of which belongs to me.

According to the press reports, the reason assigned for this action by the de facto government is that the Babicora Development Company has been committed by those claiming to exercise governmental authority in the Republic of Mexico. I and my representatives have repeatedly applied to those in authority for the protection to which as a citizen of the United States and the owner of property in Mexico I am clearly entitled.

I strongly protest against this unlawful action on the part of the de facto government. It would be unlawful in any event to forcibly take possession of the property of the Babicora Development Company, but the offense is heightened because of the excuse assigned for the action taken; that is to say, the property of the company is to be confiscated because of the United States troops the necessities of life.

"I appeal to you to immediately inaugurate an inquiry to ascertain the facts touching the alleged appropriation of the company's property, and, as a citizen of the United States, I suggest to you that it is the duty of this government to take measures to prevent the de facto Government of the Republic of Mexico from disregarding and violating the rights of American citizens who own property in the Republic of Mexico.

Report of Revolt by Trevino Denied.

By International News Service.

Washington, July 14.—Official announcement was made at the State Department today that reports had been received from consuls along the border denying the reports that General Jacinto Trevino was planning to revolt against Carranza and join forces with Villa. It was stated the reports showed General Trevino is acting under orders from Carranza and has shown no indications of revolting.

Soldiers March Scantily Clad at Camp Dodge

Des Moines, July 14.

THREE hundred soldiers, clad as scantily as the law allows, paraded at Camp DODGE for the benefit of General H. A. Allen. The general, in front of whose headquarters the howling, hooting crowd marched, considers their act disgraceful.

The men paraded in protest against the underwear that had been supplied to them. The sizes were 48 and 52, they say—much t too big for any of the soldiers.

The men, with dishrags flying from poles to represent flags, marched to headquarters. General Allen appeared, but took no action. The demonstration lasted half an hour.

SUCCESSFUL ALARM TEST FOR THE EIGHTH

By BERT FORD.

Camp Cotton, El Paso, Texas, July 14. — The Eighth Massachusetts Infantry, commanded by Colonel Frank A. Graves, thought intervention had come like a thunder clap at 10:45 last night when every mother's son was routed out of deep slumber and called to arms. As they tumbled out of cots blinking and confused they expected attack.

It was a creditable exhibition. In exactly seven minutes every man was at his post armed to the teeth and ready to blaze away, but no grousers lurked in the desert wastes.

Colonel Graves and Lieutenant-Colonel William H. Perry had uncorked a little surprise on their own crew. They wanted to see how quickly it could be done, but were more anxious to have the alarm given without racket or blunter. It was such a test as fire companies give in Boston, and like fire drills in schools to see how rapidly the children can march to safety.

Only such experiments coming unexpectedly and late at night on the Mexican border, where conditions resemble a sputtering fuse, startle one and send shivers down one's back and wind up like a damp blanket when soldiers brought to fighting tension discover there is nobody to fight.

NO FLARE OF TRUMPETS.

It was so last night. There was not the flare of trumpets nor the roll of drums. It was one of those tent-to-tent affairs when the corporal on every squad ducked into pyramidals in which twenty or more privates were snoozing, pulled the leg or arm or nose of man after man and hissed "turn out, boys, lively now, seconds are precious, and don't on your lives forget your rifles."

There is a feature of night alarms in a military camp which civilians living back home may know nothing about.

It is the demand that every man be sure to report with shoes and gun and cartridge belt, even if conditions do not permit decorating himself with shirt and trousers.

All of the Eighth had their breeches, but some of them came stumbling in the dark in their stocking feet, and these were sent back for their shoes.

The shoeless men were few, however, and even they were on the firing line in seven minutes from the first rank of a toe which set the camp on fire with excitement.

EVERY MAN ALERT.

Two companies deployed, another guarded headquarters and the rest stood panther-like at the head of company streets. Every man was alert, and when they learned it was only a drill some of them said: "Oh, we thought we could get a crack at them."

The alacrity and discipline of the regiment pleased Colonel Graves, but the thing that delighted him most was that the Ninth Regiment next door and General E. Leroy Sweetser at brigade headquarters didn't know a thing about it until morning. That proved that the performance was a success. It was the first alarm sounded on the border by any of the Bay State units, and it stirred favorable comment today.

Speaking of the Eighth reminds us that the men need underwear. They have not had a change since they arrived, owing to confusion in issuing of blanks. They have received other equipment, and most of the Bay State forces have been thoroughly supplied on a war basis.

The Eighth now boasts of two pianos. Second Lieutenant Herman L. Dillingham of the battalion quartermaster's department hired a piano yesterday, and Corporal R. C. Benchley of the gun company has an upright in his tent.

Captain Harold J. Patton of Tewksbury, instructor in small arms, has been instructed by General Sweetser to establish a rifle range for the Second Massachusetts Brigade on the plain at the foot of Mt. Franklin. It is the plan of General Sweetser to send a battalion a day to the range from Camp Cotton and to make them tramp it in the cool of morning and late afternoon, the total distance being twelve miles.

VISITS PATROL POSTS.

General Sweetser went in his automobile yesterday with his aide, Lieutenant B. M. Berry, to inspect Fifth border posts at the smelter and cement plants. Senator J. F. Cavanaugh of Everett wired to General Sweetser yesterday the fund subscribed by friends in Malden, Melrose and Everett for the purchase of a horse on the border.

Officers of the Cambridge battalion of the Eighth sent a telegram to R. O. Dalton of the Cambridge Business Men's Association which read:

"Conditions for feeding men terrible. We need shelter from sun and sand storms. Try to obtain for Cambridge battalion four markees, total seating capacity 500 men. Style used by Y. M. C. A. with sides good. Cost to build mess houses $1,000. Consider markees cheap. Advise results."

All the Massachusetts units need shelter tents for the men to eat their noon meal in comfort. With the temperature from 105 to 110 the men find it hard to squat on the desert and eat in a sun that scorches and often dust takes the taste out of their food.

Philanthropists could reap heartfelt gratitude from the Bay State soldiers if they sent to the border the tents used at garden parties and other open air festivals. The men are not allowed to carry their mess into their sleeping tents because of sanitary restrictions.

CANTEEN NOW OPEN.

The officers and men of the Ninth Regiment were royally entertained last night by the local council of the Knights of Columbus at a smoker. The regimental canteen opened yesterday much to the delight of privates.

The officers' club is to be dedicated Saturday night with a banquet. This club also will be used by General Sweetser and his staff. The officers will mess there.

The Ninth was inspected as a regiment yesterday by the regular army board. Every man had to remove his shoes and socks to have his feet inspected. The rank and file were found to be in excellent condition. Cases of flat or disabled feet mean rejection.

Major Frederick L. Bogan, in charge of the hospital corps of the Ninth, played fireman here yesterday. He was returning from the city, where he had been serving on a board of examination, when a dwelling caught fire. A regular pulled the alarm and Major Bogan somehow got possession of an emergency hose and was playing it full tilt before the firemen arrived. He was thanked by the local authorities.

LYDON TO START FUND.

The citizens of Worcester, than whom no community has shown a more patriotic spirit since the mobilization of Bay State troops, came to bat again yesterday when cases arrived containing a sanitary equipment for every militiaman who is a resident of Worcester.

The outfits contained toothbrushes and toothpaste, toilet powder, pills, soap and holder and adhesive plaster. Lieutenant John J. Lydon of the supply corps of the Ninth said today he would wire to prominent men in South Boston to start a fund to buy necessities for the twenty-seven men of the supply company who live in South Boston and Dorchester.

He said he would suggest the appointment of a committee made up of City Treasurer Charles H. Slattery and Michael J. O'Leary, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and others to raise a fund to buy toilet articles and mess shelters for the men. Cash is scarce in most of the Massachusetts organizations and has been since the boys left Framingham.

If the folks at home knew how their soldier relatives needed money to buy stamps and postcards and to pay carfares and buy fruit and candy they might come to the rescue. Candy is what all the Bay State boys are hungry for.

Why not get together, girls, and ship your fudge samples?

Announcement that William J. Dooley, gentleman in waiting to Cardinal O'Connell, had shipped 100 pounds of chocolates caused brief joy, but they have not arrived yet. Mr. Dooley sent boxing gloves soon after the Ninth arrived here.

RIDE BUCKING MULES.

The men of the Bay State cavalry had a lot of sport yesterday riding bucking army mules. Some of the critters were as good as any bucking cow pony at a Wild West show. There was a white mule that floored a number of the Bay State and Pennsylvania men, but it was finally mastered.

Newark Society Girl Is Rookie's 'Mail War Bride'

Douglas, Ariz., July 14.

PRIVATE LOUIS BANSEMER, of the First New Jersey Infantry, was married "by mail" to Miss Ethel M. Sargent, a Newark society girl.

Miss Sargent went before a notary public in Newark and signed a marriage contract with Bansemar. She mailed this to the private, who signed before a Douglas attorney, thus completing the ceremony.

2ND REGIMENT SEES CHANCE FOR ACTION

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

Columbus, N. M., July 14—Second Regiment Camp—Officers and men of the Hill Counties outfit stationed here are seething with impatient speculation today as a result of the inquiry from General Funston, commander of the Department of the South, as to the number of men fit "to take the field at once."

Of course, physical examinations, one after another, would be a matter of mere routine, to be expected, even though every man was physically certified when mustered in at Framingham. It is the "take the field at once" condition that raises the hopes of the men in camp.

Officers quiz one another trying to find some other explanation than the most obvious one, that, after all, the militia is not down here just for a watchful waiting stunt in the hot alkali dust.

CONFER OVER ORDER.

Officially, the Funston order was referred to Colonel B. B. Buck, mustering officer back in Framingham. Unofficially, the request was considered from every angle at the conference of Major Farnsworth, camp commander here with Major Ernest A. Gates, senior surgeon, and Lieutenant Rietine.

While the boys are mulling over the new order, the regular routine of hikes and drills continue just as if they were to be here forever and had to have something to take up their time.

Six and three-mile hikes were the order of the day, with short marches and drills, and extra work preparing for the 527 recruits expected late today or Saturday.

ONE CASE OF TONSILITIS.

Major Alfred Foote, commanding the Third Battalion, took his men out on a six-mile hike, the men being equipped with nearly everything they possessed. The day was very warm, and the boys were glad to get back to camp and the cold showers.

Major A. G. Beckmann's Battalion went out on a three-mile hike under heavy marching order and came back in excellent condition. The men stood the hikes well considering the dry, dusty roads and the hot sun.

Pvt. Henry Lennon of Company K, Springfield, was removed to the hospital today, due to a slight attack of tonsilitis. His case is not serious.

Lieutenant John McKenzie of Company I of Northampton is going to try his hand at "jailing" for eight days, just to see how he likes it. John was appointed sheriff of the stockade or the "bull pen," as they call it, for eight days. He will be responsible for all prisoners behind the eight-foot wire fence. John says he will try anything once.

DESERT CRUISE CRIPPLES FOUR GUN CYCLES

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

El Paso, July 14—The motorized machine gun company which had been attached to the Second Regiment at Columbus arrived here after a fifteen-hour run, with two of the gun cycles out of commission and two others under their own power but crippled and temporarily repaired.

Fourteen cycles, with side car attachments, started accompanied by a motor truck carrying Captain James L. Wales of the Ordnance Department, U. S. A., and twenty-three others. Occasional repairs brought down the running time to an average of ten miles an hour.

Finally two of the cars which had been causing trouble refused to respond to the heroic emergency treatment. They were bundled into the motor truck and toted the rest of the way.

The truck was well loaded when it pulled into El Paso. Besides the disabled machine gun cycles, five officers and nineteen men, it had aboard three-days' rations for the outfit and extra supplies of water, gasoline and oil.

Rhode Island Troops Fight Cook Car Fire

By R. E. BAILEY.

Liberal, Kan., July 14 (aboard Rhode Island troop train).—Fire call turned out all hands early in the morning, to save the most precious part of our special—the cook car.

Swinging around one of the "thank-you-marms" that keep this stretch of track from becoming too monotonous, the train jolted a pan of fat into the fire.

From the smoke that poured from every opening, one would have thought the whole train was doomed. But sand, scooped up from the right of way, soon smothered the blaze. The chef still maintains that that cook car was so hot, in this weather down here, that it was really spontaneous combustion of the car floor.

We hope to reach our destination late today. Just where we are destined has not been definitely announced — probably somewhere in Arizona or New Mexico.

Private Fatally Hurt.

El Paso, July 14.—Private William Wilson, First Pennsylvania Cavalry, a prominent civil engineer, was probably fatally injured by a stone hurled by a quarry blast.

SANITY TEST FOR VIOLENT ROOKIE

Camp Whitney, Framingham, July 14.—Colonel Beaumont B. Buck today appointed a board of medical officers to examine Private Charles L. Reardon of F Company, Lawrence, for his sanity.

Reardon, while on his way to Texas with the last detachment of rookies, became so violent it was necessary to take him from the train at Pittsfield and leave him in charge of the police.

He was taken back to camp and placed under heavy guard. The report of the medical officers will be forwarded to the War Department, which will then take action on Reardon's case.

GET NEW TENTS.

The first division battalion of rookies, A, B, C and D companies, Major William H. Dolan commanding, today moved to a new camp site on higher ground. They were furnished with new pyramidal tents, eight men to a tent.

Twenty-one officers of the Coast Artillery Corps, Sixth Regiment, and First Corps Cadets, hurriedly summoned to camp last night, most of them not even waiting to take necessary baggage, were today wondering what it was all about.

There were no instructions for these officers at the camp, and they had to content themselves by loafing around while Colonel Buck queried the Ward Department as to what use he should put them.

Captain Walter L. Weeden, regimental quartermaster of the Coast Artillery Corps, left today for El Paso, to arrange to have the United States government take over all State-owned equipment now with the Massachusetts troops.

REFUSED A FURLOUGH.

Sergeant John S. Bayes, U. S. A., formerly inspector of the Second Regiment, whose popularity won his election as first lieutenant of F Company, Pittsfield, today wired Colonel Hayes that he would have to decline the commission because he could not accept without losing his regular army standing. The War Department refused to grant him a furlough.

Rookies from the ambulance company and field hospital, mostly doctors, dentists, nurses and medical students, were busy toffy cleaning up the camp streets, it being the purpose of Colonel Warren E. Sweetser, camp commander, to have every thing clean and sanitary.

One Worcester recruit is today mowing wood as punishment for thinking his soldier's uniform entitled him to cheaper fare to Worcester on an electric car. He became so boisterous when the conductor refused to take his viewpoint that it was necessary for provost guard to bring him back to camp.

More Bay State Men Due at Border

By THOMAS FRÁNCIS PHELAN.

Sedalia, Mo., July 14.—(Aboard Bay State Recruits' troop train). Prayers of thankfulness were offered up today at the announcement that this outfit of recruits for the Second Regiment is at last on the final lap of its killing trip to the border in the hottest kind of weather they have ever endured, and with about two hours' sleep a night. They are due on the border late today.

The trip would be killing in this weather with all the comforts of de luxe sleepers. In these dusty, stifling day coaches, where the men sleep two to a seat, on the dismantled seat backs, is certainly an acid test for the most patriotic.

It would be difficult to sleep in a four-poster on the back porch, so hot is it. Just imagine conditions with the mercury at 112, when a man must wake his hunkie to get him to turn over at the same time, when the sweltering plush of the improvised beds gets too hot in one place.

MEN STAND IT WELL.

In spite of the hardships, the men are keeping their temper better than any one of them would have thought possible a month ago. Every announcement concerning the date of their arrival at their post is greeted with cheers. They count off the miles with a fervid cheerfulness that would drive those responsible for these horrible traffic tortures to remorse—and that is saying a great deal.

The officers in charge have been kind and considerate. At every stop, the men are allowed to leave the cars and exercise. At such places they are surrounded by girls glad to greet the boys from "Good old Massachusetts."

In passing Ohio residents told the men of the passing of several New York regiments en route to the border and of seeing several flat cars on which were squatted Mexicans bound for Michigan to work on a ranch.

Farther along the line, near Springfield, a soldier attached to the New York regiments lost his balance on the platform of the train on which he was riding, fell under the wheels and was killed.

At several stopping places were chalk marks on wooden buildings showing the hand work of members of Battery A, of the Rhode Island artillery.

PUTS BRAKES ON THE BOYS.

General Wood has nothing on Sergeant W. J. Bishop when it comes to exercising general supervision over a body of men. Bishop is a brakeman and carries a card to prove it, but he is an adept at putting the brakes on the minds of recalcitrant recruits.

Bishop also has a penchant for footing it through the nineteen cars at 10:30 each evening with a bugler, who blows taps in a way that would make the cornetist in Sousa's band feel like a zero with the rim removed.

The troops were allowed five minutes' exercise at Hannibal and received the happy news that the sleeping coaches, promised them in Framingham, might be attached in Parson, Kansas, and Texas only a few miles away.

When the train pulled into Sedalia, Mo., a crowd of hucksters with all kinds of curb containing ice cream, tonic, lager beer and whiskey greeted the boys. While the cars were being watered some of the boys took occasion to patronize the hucksters.

DILLON DARWS PAY AFTER A LONG WAIT

John H. Dillen, Commissioner of Parks and Recreation, today received his pay for the first time in several weeks. Sometime ago the Civil Service Commission ruled he could not draw his pay because he had not been confirmed as the department head. Yesterday Corporation Counsel Sullivan ruled that employes of a department could have their pay withheld when not confirmed, but that a department head's pay could not be withheld.

75 PER CENT. PROFIT IS MADE ON MILK

Binghamton, July 14.—Senator Charles W. Weeks and the joint legislative investigation committee held a session here to determine if possible the control and regulation of the price of farm products. Witness testified that the Bordens controlled the price of milk in this section and regulated it, and that the profit to the firm was from 50 to 75 per cent. The Bordens pay 5 cents a quart here for certified milk and sell it in Brooklyn for 15 cents.

SEVERAL FAMILIES FLEE WEST END FIRE

Several families, occupants of the four-story brick dwelling house at No. 59 Poplar street, were awakened from their sleep and forced to descend to the street in their night clothes early today when fire was discovered in the grocery store of Ethel Shienfeld on the first floor.

Clouds of smoke from the fire filled the hallways and penetrated into sleeping rooms, forcing the occupants to flee.

WOMAN'S DEATH AT GRAFTON A MYSTERY

Grafton, July 14.—Lying on her right side with her head under the front axle Mrs. Katie Rhinehart of this town was found dead under a buggy owned by Martin Kelley, for whom the dead woman was housekeeper.

Medical Examiner Knight of Westboro was summoned and according to the story Kelley is alleged to have told him. Mrs. Rhinehart arrived home, from Farnumsville about 9 o'clock in a dazed condition.

Mr. Kelley said he unhitched the horse and put it in the barn. He left Mrs. Rhinehart in the buggy and went to bed. She was found dead several hours later.

The autopsy showed a deep cut over the right forehead, a fracture at the left base of the skull and concussion of the brain.

The police have discovered a hatchet at the Kelley farm, where the body was found. This weapon had some hair and stains on it which might have been blood. No arrest has been made as yet.

HOLD WOMAN UPON KIDNAPING CHARGE

Mrs. Josephine Fournier, divorced wife of Donat Talbot of Salem, was arraigned in the Salem court today on a charge of kidnaping her son, Roger, from St. Peter's Convent, Manchester, N. H. She resisted extradition and the case was continued to July 20. Mrs. Fournier refused to tell where the boy was except to say that she took him to Canada.

THE WOBURN LADY CURED OF SPASMS

Mrs. Hattie Irving of No. 16 Court Street Suffered Fifteen Years.

MRS. HATTIE IRVING.

Just because you are not incapacitated from your business or pleasure, the warnings of stomach trouble should not go unheeded or serious indigestion, dizziness, nervousness, constipation, headache, backache, pains in the back and sides, that tired, "run-down" feeling and various other symptoms indicating a deranged stomach, which can be restored to its normal condition by Plant Juice, the herbal stomach remedy.

Daily testimonials are received from prominent local people testifying how they have been restored to health by the use of Plant Juice. Recently the signed statement was received from Mrs. Hattie Irving, who resides at No. 16 Court court, Woburn, Mass., and who was born and reared in Woburn, and is a well-known lady there. She stated:

"I had suffered from stomach trouble, indigestion, dyspepsia and dizzy spells for the past fifteen years. I had it so bad that I used to go into spasms with pains in my stomach after eating even a cup of tea would distress me. I could not partake of any food that was hot; I had to eliminate vegetables and meats from my diet. Whatever food I did eat would ferment in my stomach. I was very nervous and restless at night, could not sleep well. I had a torpid liver, and my skin was as yellow as saffron. I have only used on bottle of Plant Juice, and I can say truly that I can eat any kind of food. I have no more aches or pains, sleep well, and am not nervous or restless. I certainly can recommend Plant Juice to anyone who suffered as I did. It has cured me, and I am now giving it to my daughter."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. —Advertisement.

Barred by your Complexion!

Does a pimply, unattractive skin shut you out from the full enjoyment of the summer's pleasures? Then think of this:

To use Resinol Soap means that each time you cleanse your face you give it a "beauty treatment" with the soothing, healing Resinol medication. If aided, in severe cases, by a little Resinol Ointment, this usually leaves the complexion naturally clear and fresh. MOOSE AND DRYS PLAN MERGER IN STATE

Plans for a coalition of the Progressive and Prohibition parties, with William Shaw as the joint party candidate for Governor this Fall, were announced today by Chester B. Lawrence, one of the prominent Bull Moose leaders of Massachusetts.

Mr. Lawrence, last year the party candidate for Lieutenant-Governor and who yesterday announced his willingness to run for Governor this year, today declared his intention to wait upon Mr. Shaw with an invitation for him to accept the gubernatorial nomination.

"I am one of those Progressives who sincerely believe that a third and radical party should be kept in existence to act as a lash on the Republican and Democratic parties, which are reactionary and unresponsive to the public will," said Mr. Lawrence.

"I am ready to run as the party's candidate for Governor, not because I would expect to be elected, but to keep the party together.

"William Shaw is a Progressive. He ran as the Prohibition candidate for Governor last Fall on a platform that contained even more progressive planks than ever had been adopted by the Progressive party. I expect that he will be the Prohibition candidate again this year. A delegation of Progressives will ask him to enter the primary for their nomination."

Alkali in Soap Bad for the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy; it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

For All Complexion Ills

If the skin be colorless, sallow, muddy, over-red, blotchy or freckled, nothing will so surely overcome the condition as ordinary mercolized wax. It literally takes off a bad complexion—absorbs the dead and near-dead particles of surface skin, gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience at all. A new complexion is then in evidence, clear, spotless, delicately soft and beautiful. One ounce of this wax, procurable at any drugstore, will rejuvenate even the worst complexion. It is used like cold cream.—Advertisement.

It had been chloroformed. Wasserman cut his wrists, turned on the gas in a fireplace and lay down with his head but a few inches from the log. No reason is known for his act.

Dispatches from Charleston report two men were killed and that the entire water front had been inundated. The wind was still high.

Society Notes

Stockbridge, July 14.—Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard, Jr., entertained some sixty guests at Ravinehurst, their home in the Berkshires. The grounds were alive with colored lights, arranged among the trees, bushes and plants, so that the scene was in close touch with fairyland.

The hall and dining rooms made one large dance room, so that dancing was enjoyed without any crowded conditions. The music was the Colonial Dance Orchestra of Boston.

Refreshments were served at 11 o'clock on the spacious piazza, which runs the entire length of the house. The rear piazza, overlooking the mountains, was turned into a living room. Bright moonlight revealed for miles the extensive view over the surrounding country.

The house guests were Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. James Duane, Mr. and Mrs. James Widener, Dr. Katherine Tallant, Dr. George Henderson, Dr. George Perkins, Miss Anna Piehler, Judson Wilbee and Robert Shepard.

"HAPPIEST MAN" LETTERS ARE INTERESTING

The "Happiest Man in Boston" has not yet been found.

There are so many of him.

All this week letters have been coming to the editor of the Sunday AMERICAN from persons who believe they are the happiest men in Boston.

Oscar Jenkins of Mattapan started the argument. He wrote to ask who was the Happiest Man, anyway, and the Sunday editor undertook to help him find out by inviting any one who thinks he is happy to write to the Sunday editor, Boston AMERICAN, No. 82 Summer street, and tell all about it.

The letters are worth reading. One man has mounted the water wagon—and is happy. Another has fallen off—and is equally pleased. One is married—and glad of it. Another's wife has gone to the country—and he's overjoyed.

And so it goes.

Perhaps some of the letters are not written in sober earnest. Nevertheless, they offer an interesting set of contributions on the question, "What makes men happy?" Here is one, for instance:

"Editor Sunday AMERICAN:

"I have been profoundly—I might say deeply—absorbed in a certain investigation.

"This investigation had just reached its successful completion, and I turned to the newspapers for relaxation, last Sunday.

"The appeal for the 'Happiest Man' in your publication attracted my attention and interest.

"I considered the subject soberly, and I am gravely convinced that I have fair claim to be the happiest man in Boston.

"And I have reason to be.

"After three years of research of the most exhausting nature, I have made a discovery. It is epoch-making, marks a new era in the study of bird life.

"I have discovered why the robin always pulls up angle worms from the sod head first.

"It is because they stick their heads, and not their little tails, out of the ground.

"Have I not the right to be happy?

Yours for Science,

What Thin Folks Should Do To Gain Weight

Good Advice for Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women.

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried advertised flesh-makers, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to life-long skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered combination of assimilative agents has made fat grow after years of thinness, and it is also unequalled, judging from reports, for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable preparation is called Sargol. Six strength-giving, fat-producing assimilative elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this preparation, which is endorsed and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A few weeks' systematic use of Sargol should go far to produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying nourishing fats to the blood. If not, every druggist who sells it is authorized to return the purchase price. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that thin people need are thus provided. All leading druggists supply Sargol and say there is a large demand for it.

While this new preparation has from reports given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and vitalizer, its use is not recommended to nervous people unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh.

Refuse Permit for Tag Day for Allied Soldiers

The Overseers of the Poor today, acting in conjunction with the police, refused to grant the right to hold a tag day in Boston to the British, French and Belgian Association for Aiding Crippled Soldiers. Chairman William P. Fowler of the board told the press that the reason for this was the fact that the Chamber of Commerce had requested them not to do so.

Secretary James McKibben of the Chamber of Commerce said to the AMERICAN, in regard to the request not to issue this permit, "We feel that this association has no responsible organization. The stories told by the different members do not tally. After investigation we asked the Overseers of the Poor not to grant the permit."

5 PHILADELPHIA DEATHS FROM HEAT

Philadelphia, July 14.—Five more deaths in this city from the heat were reported today, making a total of twenty deaths since July 3.

SALEM POLICE HEAD ANGERED BY CHARGES

Salem, July 14.—City Marshal Harrington was incensed today at the attack upon the city government in the Council meeting last night, when Councillor Doyle said:

"Liquor conditions are now worse than ever before, and the Council is powerless to act as the Mayor has full charge of the police department.

"The city is wide open and there is no need of any licenses. All that anyone needs to be able to sell liquor is the price to buy it."

The marshal commented: "Anyone that says Salem is wide open says what he knows is not true. The city was never under better control, and under this administration the police have been especially active.

"The Mayor has suggested that to confound the men who make these charges I prepare a list of prosecutions, and I am going to do so, to show the activity of the police.

"If the courts will not convict there is nothing more the police can do."

It Is Not Better to Have Bet and Lost Than Never to Have Bet at All

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

Jones May Alter Mind — Browns a Classy Bunch

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

Fielder Jones led his scrappy Browns into town this morning for a four-game series with the World's Champions. These boys from St. Louis gave a good exhibition upon their first visit here and may be classed as dangerous all the time.

Jones doesn't figure the Champions as likely to repeat. The Champions may cause him to change his mind later on, but in the meantime it is up to Manager Carrigan to keep his team moving at the same clip it has struck during the last four games.

The Browns may be close to the tailend of the procession, but they are far from being a tailend club, so watch out for trouble. They come to Boston in fine condition, filled with the confidence their leader instills and with a pretty fast team. The pitching proposition is about the big thing with them. Lately they have grown fat while in Philadelphia, where the opposition wasn't much.

Today's game which starts at 3:15, being a single contest, is likely to see either Foster or Mays working for the Champions, while Groom or Baumgardner is about the closest guess for St. Louis.

Jones has ten pitchers: Weilman, Plank, Koob, Hamilton, Groom, Davenport, McCabe, Fincher, Park and Baumgardner. Three catchers, Severoid, Hartley and Chapman. The infield, Sisler, Pratt, Lavan, Johnson and Austin, with Marsans, Miller, Tobin and Shotten in the outfield.

MAY REVIVE FORECAST.

Jones is a crafty baseball manager, about the best in the game and he is sure to give the Champions something to hustle to beat. Jones was quoted recently as to his opinion upon the outcome of the American League race and among other things he said that the Red Sox didn't look strong enough to him for a repeat. But that was before these Champions grabbed off four out of six and these four in a row.

The Browns are no stepping-stone team by any means. To win from them the Champions will have to play as hard if not harder than they did against the White Sox and that is saying something.

In the series just closed each team scored an equal number of runs, thirteen, but the Chicago club handed Boston three runs on errors and two on bases on balls, while Boston put one run over starting it on a pass and another through a hit by pitcher, while two were on errors. On straight baseball the Chicago club scored nine runs to Boston's eight.

MUST HIT TO WIN FLAG.

It looks as if the Champions had really decided that they could hit the ball and hit it hard and often. They must in order to win the flag. The whole situation has changed, from a dependable pitching staff to one that is, to say the least, uneven. Nothing but the grand defensive strength of the team, its outfield with Lewis and Hooper, and its scrappy infield has held them up where they are.

This puts the thought before the fans—what if the team's pitchers should duplicate their performance of 1915 and the team start hitting? If this occurs, the boys will breeze in, and do so without a star in centre-field, a man who can get balls hit into the air out that way and not pile up the hits that cost games of ball.

There is only one Tris Speaker and he has done much to put the American League upon a paying basis through his transfer to Cleveland. Not only has that city made money but all the clubs have got their share owing to the scrap in the Indians. But the loss of Speaker should not cripple the Red Sox.

Without him there is enough real championship timber to win again and through this repeat there would be the added distinction which all would be forced to admit.

The Red Sox are up there almost at the top at a time when it should be playing its best article of ball set and ready for the drive to the finish. The fans have become reconciled to the loss of Tris and admit that this sale has made the race.

Winning four games, two double-headers, from Chicago, set that club back, but the Browns must be beaten while the White Sox are playing Philadelphia or all this good fortune will be wasted, temporarily at least.

The day of rest, and the change in temperature should tend toward producing renewed vigor in the attack.

RACERS KILLED BY LIGHTNING

New York, July 14.—A lightning bolt killed three thoroughbreds at the Empire City track (Yonkers), besides causing fright among the spectators by shattering the flagpole of the grandstand and damaging the immense structure.

The bolt drove through the barn where the Belmont and Butler strings were stabled, killed August Belmont's two-year-olds, Cockleshell and Nancy Fair, and injuring the Butler three-year-old, Variety, so badly it had to be destroyed.

FANS CAN ENLIST AT GAME

Tent at Fenway Park Monday for Entertainments in Addition to Military Exhibition and Game

Any baseball fan who wends his way to Fenway Park next Monday and becomes unusually impressed by the military spectacle which will precede the playing of the regular ball game between the Red Sox and the Browns can enlist in the militia if he cares to by applying at a tent which will be erected near the park. This and many other features will mark the Soldiers' Relief Fund exercises at Fenway Park.

This morning Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole declared that the exercises at Fenway Park would be as close to the actual happenings on the border as they can possibly be made.

While, of course, the fans will be more interested in the Red Sox-Browns game than anything else, indications are that unusual interest attaches to the whole program.

Captain M. Sumner Holbrook, with his command, Company A, Coast Artillery Corps, and Captain Harold W. Estey with A Company, First Corps Cadets, have volunteered to make the day one grand big success.

PROCEEDS GO TO SWELL FUND.

President Lannin has entered wholeheartedly into the affair and has announced that the entire Boston proceeds will go to the Governor's Fund for the aid of needy families of militiamen now doing duty at the border.

The members of the Sixth Regiment Band have volunteered their services and will open the day's program with a concert starting at 1:30. That there might be no conflict, the members of the band secured the consent of the Musicians' Union to carry out its part of the program.

Governor McCall, Mayor Curley and the members of the Governor's staff in full uniform will be guests. In addition, all militia officers not now assigned to active duty will be present in full uniform. Thus it is planned to give the day a regular military aspect.

BATTLE DRILL A FEATURE.

Captain Holbrook's company will give an exhibition drill in extended order, and this will be accompanied by sounds of more or less heavy firing.

Captain Estey's company will contribute as its share of the program, "A Day in Camp," showing the activities of a company in actual service, the pitching of shelter tents, the erecting of a field kitchen, cooking meals, etc.

The Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association, to which President J. J. Lannin is to turn over the entire Boston share of the gate receipts, is looking after several hundred needy families of militiamen now at the front.

Tickets for the "day" went on sale yesterday at the following places of business: Bacons, Filene's, Jordan Marsh Company, R. H. White's, Houghton & Dutton's, Shuman's, M. Steinert & Sons, Gilchrist's, R. H. Stearns, the B. A. A. and at the club offices at Fenway Park.

TEDDY CARROLL TO RACE AT READVILLE

Teddy Carroll of Springfield, one of the best motorcycle riders of them all, has entered Saturday's big meet at Readville, when the gala card, originally arranged for July 4, but prevented owing to rain, will be run off. Carroll rode at Sheepshead Bay on the holiday and it was only on account of the local postponement the promoters were able to secure him.

The card follows: ten-mile professional race, five-mile amateur race, one-mile time trials, ten-mile match race, Smith vs. Pope; five-mile professional race, ten-mile match race, Holden vs. Mann and 100-mile free-for-all. The big show starts at 2:30 o'clock.

ROBINSON, VARSITY QUARTER, A STUDENT

William Farr Robinson, who is being relied on to handle the Harvard football team in its most important battles this Fall, is a student in the Harvard Summer School. Robinson's position is quarterback. He is also the best drop kicker at Harvard. Nils Nelson, a sub-guard, is also in the school.

M'Graw Seeking Services of Herzog

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 14.—John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, told a Cincinnati friend today that Buck Herzog, manager of the Reds, will not be with the team much longer. He said President Hempstead of the New York club and two other clubs are bidding for Herzog and chances are the Giants will get him.

McGraw conferred at length with Garry Herrmann, the Cincy boss, at Baltimore on last Monday night and it is said he came here with the permission to talk to Herzog about a shift to the New York club. Herrmann will be in New York tomorrow and probably will confer with Hempstead, who returned to New York yesterday.

Another story published here today is to the effect that the Cincinnati club is about to change hands, and that Charlie Starr, prominent in amateur baseball circles throughout the country, is trying to get capital enough to buy out the present owners and make himself president.

FOUR MINOR CLUBS FORFEIT FRANCHISES

Auburn, N. Y., July 14.—Secretary John H. Farrell of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, announced that the franchise of the Lexington, Ky., Frankfort, Ky., Charleston, W. Va., and Huntington, W. Va., teams have been forfeited to the Ohio State League.

Attention of all minor league players was called by Farrell to the rule that optional agreements must be exercised on or before August 15. The sale or the release of the services of a player by a National Association club after August 26 is prohibited, or to a major league club within twenty days of the close of the season of the club disposing of the players.

CUTTS SEEKING POWERS.

Oliver Cutts, chairman of Purdue University athletic committee, is in Boston in quest of a track coach for the Indian school. Cutts has had considerable correspondence with J. Fred Powers, the Worcester Academy coach, which will probably lead to him signing with Purdue.

LYNN RETURNS M'CABE.

Lynn, July 14.—Dick McCabe, a Red Sox pitcher who was turned over to Lynn a few weeks ago, has been returned to Manager Carrigan.

WELTERS MEET AT C. A. C.

Connolly and Flynn Battle in the Main Event; Moore and McDonald Clash Again.

COMMERCIAL A. C. CARD.

Eddie Flynn of Peabody vs. Joe Connolly of Charlestown, 12 rounds.
Jim Moore of Jamaica Plain vs. Jim McDonald of Dorchester, 8 rounds.
Teddy Murphy vs. Charley Miller, 6 rounds.
Pat Owens vs. Louis Leonard, 6 rounds.
Referee—Jack Sheehan.
Starting time—8 p. m.

By RINGSIDE.

According to Joe Connolly, the Charlestown Bearcat, Eddie Flynn, the Peabody glovesman, is going to be mussed up even worse than Terrence Brooks belabored "Yank" O'Brien, in last week's main number at the Commercial A. C., in the ring of the West End fistic body tonight.

By the same token, Flynn avers that what he is going to do to Connolly is little short of a sin and a shame. Hence, the talent here receives the early-day statements of the rival battlers and exactly what comes to pass remains to be seen.

Flynn is the experienced ringster of the two, but Connolly is the better swatter, and if the member from Peabody, who owns a very so-so amount of ring wisdom, elects to make it a toe-to-toe affair, the milling is bound to be brisk, with the loser a badly-whipped gent.

CONNOLLY SOME HITTER.

Connolly is of the improving sort. He was clearly outpointed by Joe Reddy when he made his debut as a professional, but since then has tackled only out-and-out fighters and had batted at a .300 clip. Joe isn't much of a boxer. But he's some battler. Hence, generally pleases and most always wins.

Flynn is an in-and-outer; in fact, Eddie is very much like the little maid with the curl. Be it known that when he's good, he's very, very good, but when he's bad, he's not such a much; in fact, is duck-soup for his foe, if his foe amounts to much.

Connolly and Flynn are down to step the twelve-round route. The weight is not announced, but forfeits are reported to be up, so the big bout will doubtless take place as advertised.

BIG FELLOWS SHOULD PLEASE.

The semi-final is attracting equally as much attention as the main event. It brings together Jim Moore, a former California amateur star, and Jim McDonald of Dorchester, a pair of Jumbos. They had it out in hammer-and-tongs fashion in the same arena a few weeks ago.

McDonald looked like a sure winner at the end of the third round, and, when the betting was 10-1 in his favor, he bumped into a stiff punch and was rendered hors de combat.

Pat Owens and Louis Leonard and Teddy Murphy and Charley Miller are the pairs who are down to show in the two six-rounders. Jack Sheehan will referee all four scrapes.

PETE COMPTON OFF TO LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Pirates having decided that Pete Compton would be of no value to them, asked for waivers and immediately the Braves put in claim, according to baseball law. As a result "Calabash" is now on his way to join the Louisville club, to which the Braves originally traded him. Just what Boston hopes to get as a result of the deal is not known.

At the offices of the club it was denied that President Haughton had slapped any $250 fine on Johnny Evers as a result of his most recent suspension. It was also explained that no deals for Evers are contemplated. On August 1 about 1,200 grammar school boys will be the guests of the club as a result of an invitation extended by President Haughton through Representative Dowling of Allston and Brighton. St. Louis is here that day.

Callahan Dodges Issue — Sun Out at Game Time

Pittsburgh, July 14.—Manager Stallings and the Boston crew feel they were shabbily treated yesterday by the Pirate management when they declared the matinee off an hour before gametime just because a little shower came up.

It soon stopped, and at gametime the sun was shinning bright and warm. The local management gave it out that it did not have time to get the Fred Clarke patent cover down before the downpour put the diamond out of commission.

It was a distinct loss to the Braves who have a double quartet of pitchers ready to go in at any time, while the Buccanneers welcomed the day off, as their twirlers are not going well and the infield is shot to pieces just now.

COULD HAVE STAGED GAME.

While Manager Stallings doesn't say that Jim Callahan put one over on him by sidestepping yesterday's contest, he shrugged his shoulders in a very suggestive way when asked why it was the Pirate management declared the game off with nearly 1,000 people clamoring to get into the park and the sun breaking through the clouds.

The Braves were anxious for a double-header today, as Tyler, Nehf, Ragan and Reulbach are all ready to go in, but they were disappointed, as August 30 was set for the playing off of the game. Callahan hopes to have his battered pitching force rejuvenated before that time.

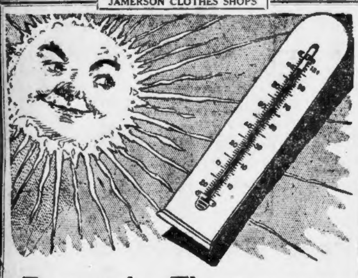

The Braves were pleased with the announcement of their boss last night regarding Captain Johnny Evers, and it ought to settle the rumors that have been traveling around, to wit: that the scrappy Trojan was about through at Boston. Evers will be in the game at Cincinnati Sunday, says Stallings, and perform regularly.

CONNOLLY LEAVES CLUB.

With the exception of Joe Connolly all the Braves are in fine shape and ready to push themselves up to the top. Joe left at noon yesterday for his home at Woonsocket, R. I., after receiving word of his mother's serious illness.

The Braves will likely face Cooper today, while Stallings will take his pick from Ragan, Tyler and Reulbach.

Jack Dillon Is Whipped

Outboxed by Levinsky

Baltimore, July 14.—Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis "man killer," who has been going through all the heavyweight contenders like water through a sieve, caught a tartar in Battling Levinsky. The two men met in a ten-round bout yesterday and the Battler proved the master. In the final round he backed his man all around the ring and had him holding on. Up to that time the fight was a tame one.

The fight was originally scheduled to go fifteen rounds, but owing to the smallness of the house the bout was cut out to a ten-round no-decision affair. Financially the fight was a failure, and the men were forced to accept a reduction of their share of the purse, and only went on to please the visiting Elks who are convening here.

When Levinsky, the first to arrive, jumped into the ring at 6.10 o'clock the wearied crowd let loose a few cheers and implored the fighters to "get busy." Levinsky's seconds were his manager, Dan Morgan, and "Mickey" Brown, the Philadelphia bantamweight.

The crowd, after spending a restless hour and a quarter, cheered wildly as Dillon entered the ring at 6.20 p. m. His chief advisers were his manager, Sam Murbergen, and Pat O'Connor, the Washington referee.

The sun had gone down before the fighters entered the ring and it was growing dark rapidly.

Dillon went after the Battler from the start and tried hard for a knockout, but Levinsky, with a straight left, generalship and wonderful boxing skill, had the Hoosier guessing all during the bout. For the first three rounds Dillon, with heavy body blows and left hooks to the head, had the better of the going.

In the fourth the Battler started after Dillon, and from then on beat Jack all the way. Levinsky met the Westerner coming in with short, snappy uppercuts, which landed often on Dillon's head and body.

Levinsky jabbed his opponent repeatedly and in the ninth and tenth rounds had the conqueror of Frank Moran in a bad way. There who no question as to the decision.

The crowd, which the fight promoters expected to be large, was a disappointment, only 3000 persons being inside the grounds at the time scheduled for the main bout.

Although no announcement had been made of the amount of the purse it was believed in fight circles here that it was to be $5500 to be split, sixty per cent. to the winner and forty per cent. to the loser.

The fighters and promoters went into the office of the ball club, where they argued behind closed doors.

There was much talk about that the promoters wanted to cut the fight from the scheduled fifteen-round decision go to a ten-round no-decision affair and also cut down the purse.

Jim Rice to Get Chance to Go With Cornell

If the report emanating from New York that Columbia has decided to quit intercollegiate rowing be true, probably no man is better satisfied than "Jim" Rice, coach of the crews at Morningside Heights.

Rice enjoys a long-term contract with Columbia, his document having some three years more to run, but the coach is anxious to find a way to give up rowing at Columbia, in order to become Charles Courtney's successor at Cornell.

Courtney is through as active coach at Ithaca, and no better man could be found to step into his place than Rice. Cornell, during the past two years, has offered Rice liberal terms to succeed the veteran, whose health has failed him.

If Columbia has really abandoned rowing as an intercollegiate sport, Rice will probably grab at the chance to have his contract cancelled, so he can take hold at Cornell.

BOXING BRIEFS and GOSSIP

The matchmakers of the Armory A. A. has completed the preliminary events to the Tuesday evening's encounter between Joe Welling, the Lynn lightweight, a rough and ready ringster, who is almost bound to figure, making his Boston bow, and Walter Butler, the promising Revere boy, who is generally rated just about this section's best Queensberry prospect.

As already announced, it will be Johnny Dawson of South Boston, Joe McCarthy's crack juvenile, and Johnny Emery of Somerville in the semi-final. The two six-rounders, just booked, will bring together Johnny Dawson, Dunovan's stablemate, and Johnny Comber of Portsmouth, N. H., and Al Girard of the North End and Freddie Cahill of Everett. Comber is a product of the navy and a tough little customer.

Al Delmont is again superintending Butler's training work. The veteran featherweight "trimmed" the Revere boy for his sweet battle with Gilbert Gallant and the thorough mentoring Walter displayed has got conclusively proved Al did a good job.

A bet about Butler will be known after his go with Welling. If he succeeds in putting the Western lad to rout, he's made. The Chicagoan, now operating in Jimmy Dunovan's stable, was good enough to run a bang-up second to Eree Hanson of his home town, who came back by giving Hon. Freddie Welsh an unmerciful trouncing in his rounds at Milwaukee. Welling has won all his starts since coming East and seems to be on the top of his form, as they say in goldfish. So, with Butler coming through, the Charley Beahler entrant is bound to be the big noise locally throughout the Summer and Fall.

Tim Looney, Howard McRae's manager, states that nothing will suit him better than to send the Cambridge featherweight against Young Reitz of New Bedford at the C. A. C., but states he feels he is entitled to the proper bid. Looney is also handling Johnny Mack and seeks a contest with "Bill" Casey for that young gentleman.

Eddie Mack, Terry Brooks' manager, states that the newsboys' champion will be in trim for action inside of a week. He wants the winner of tonight's Connolly-Flynn affair for Terry and hopes said winner is Connolly, as he knows how strong the Charlestown crowd is for Joe and figures he can get down a good bet when the proper time arrives.

Brooks' slaughter of "Yank" O'Brien at the C. A. C. last Friday night cost Terry two dollars this week. He put his hands on the blink belonging the luckless "Yank" so was unable to meet Jimmy Reagan at Providence Wednesday night, or Connolly tonight at the C. A. C. George Foreman originally planned to send Connolly against Brooks, but when Terry was forced to ask for a respite, signed Eddie Flynn.

KILRAIN AT 59, IS PICTURE OF HEALTH

Minneapolis, Minn., July 14.—Jake Kilrain, who years ago fought a 106-round draw with Jem Smith of England for the world's heavyweight championship belt, and later went down to defeat before John L. Sullivan in the seventy-fifth round of a knuckle fight, is in Minneapolis. The veteran of more than 150 ring battles is on his way to Chicago, where he has been doing boxing exhibition work through the West and is planning on pairing with John L. Sullivan in a vaudeville sketch.

Kilrain, who says he is fifty-nine years old, looks the picture of health. A first impression would lead one to believe that he was a lawyer, or a college professor.

LAST NIGHT IN THE RING.

New York, July 14.—In a sleeping bout at the Arverne S. C., Pat Rockaway, Harry Cross stopped Ray Parks of Pittsburgh in the eighth round. Parks was a easy sight in the last two rounds. Cross weighed 160 and Parks 158.

New York, July 14.—"Knockout" Sullivan easily defeated "Battling" Gans in the six-ten-round bout at the Clermont A. C., Brooklyn.

Woodland Bows to Mandate of Golf Heads

After considering the warning of the U. S. G. A. in all its phases the Woodland Golf Club finally decided to obey the order, for the time being at least, and as a result Paul Tewksbury has withdrawn from match play in the fourney now under way.

As a result of the action of the directory at Woodland there now seem but little question that Jesse P. Guilford, the club's big hitter, will be eligible to compete in the United States amateur championship at Philadelphia later this season. Last night Tewksbury and others at the club stated that the former had played in the qualification without the understanding that he was jeopardizing the chances of his clubmates or himself in future championship golf.

Following a meeting of the directors Secretary Irving W. Pritch gave out the following statement bearing on the case:

"After a full discussion at a meeting of the board of directors on July 1 it was found to be the unanimous opinion that it would be better form entirely, regardless of the action of the ruling of the United States Golf Association, for Francis Ouimet, Paul Tewksbury and John H. Sullivan, Jr., not to enter in open tournaments pending hearing of the appeal. Mr. Tewksbury thought that this applied to the State amateur championship only. Upon being informed last night that the directors preferred that he should not play even in the Woodland tournament he immediately withdrew."

"POP" GEERS BADLY HURT IN ACCIDENT

Cleveland, July, 14.—Edward F. (Pop) Geers, the seventy-year-old Memphis, Tenn., horseman and most famous of all reinsmen, is at Lakeside Hospital in a serious condition as the result of an accident at the North Randall track. Four horses were racing to the wire in training when a harrow loomed up in the path of Geers' horse.

The veteran's horse plunged, into the harrow and Geers was tossed under the feet of another horse. Physicians believe he will recover.

CRICKET NOTES.

SOME very important games are down for decision in the Massachusetts State League series for tomorrow, inasmuch as but three games will be played in Greater Boston.

UNITED SHOE WHITES will journey to Canton, there to meet Messrs. Hagius & Co. The champions had a very close call in their game with the Caribbeans a week ago and Canton, known as a hard team to defeat at home, may pull the victory.

AT Beverly the United Shoe Blues line up against the fast traveling Bicknards, who have evidently struck their batting stride along with the reliable bowling of Meyers. The latter team has the edge on their opponents and should win.

BROCKTON, who at present are tied for first position with the champion Beverly Whites, will tackle the slow-in-getting-started St. Georges at Wood Island Park. Undoubtedly the Shoe City boys would like to see the locals in the Win column, but at this stage of the series will not want to make the sacrifice when their pennant aspiration is at its height.

NEEDHAM remains at home instead of journeying to Franklin Field in their match with Caribbeans. The former team was fortunate in drawing last Saturday's game and will be out with revenge as their theme. The latter, encouraged at their near success of victory against the champions a week ago, will be there with bells on and an interesting game will result in the clash.

GLENDALE PARK will be the scene of the Everett-Wanderers clash and should the same players who were in the lineup for the former team against St. Georges be in the game tomorrow the Wanderers will find the going hard. However, the uncertainties of cricket may balance this advantage and a surprise may be sprung.

Cuts or wounds, sores or bruises are likely to become infected quickly. It is, therefore, very important for you to immediately apply Minard's liniment, the remarkably pure, creamy antiseptic, for it kills germs instantly and makes wounds heal rapidly.

Nat Butler Out With Pair of Spicy Bills

There is a double incentive attached to tomorrow night's 25-mile motor-paced race at the Revere Cycle Track, for the winner not only gets first money, but a place in the Brassard one-hour race, which is to be staged at the beach oval next Monday evening.

The starters in tomorrow's event will be Bobby Walthour, the "Dixie Flyer," Clarence Carman of Jamaica, L. I., and two local boys, "Pinkie" Turville and Fred Herbert.

Monday night's Brassard will bring together Victor Linart, Leon Didier, Georges Seres and the winner of tomorrow night's event.

George Wiley's many friends will be glad to learn the game little Syracuse rider is not as badly injured as was first supposed and will be ready for action within two weeks. Wiley is staying at Revere and is recovering rapidly from his recent injury, caused by going down in a "spill."

Walthour's sensational work Wednesday night has caused no end of comment and many honestly believe that the Atlanta veteran has hit his 1914 stride, when he won more races and broke more records than any man in the paced game. Bobby held his own with Leon Didier, in fact went the Frenchman one better, and any man who can do this is far from all in.

Birds of Wisdom as Pets

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

There may be something worth pondering over in the suggestion that the persistent "good luck" which seems to attend some persons is due to their having accidentally become the pets of higher beings, whose existence we do not clearly recognize.

However that may be, it is certain that some of the lower animals that we make pets of have fortune thrust upon them without any comprehension on their part of the cause of the smooth-sailing life allotted to them. On the other hand, to be a pet is often to lose freedom, so that the goodness of the luck becomes questionable after all, and this seems particularly true of birds.

The pet-making instinct sometimes takes odd turns, as in the case illustrated by the accompanying pictures, which show pet owls belonging to an owl fancier in England. To most people an owl seems a very strange pet, and the bird certainly does not show the intelligence usually expected in a pet animal.

But as a thing to look at, an owl is as curious a creature as almost any that the animal world affords. It is a bird with a "face," and its face has an element of terror even for human beings. The huge staring eyes, with the great circular disks of stiff feathers surrounding them, the big fiercely-curved beak, the fluffy feathers covering the whole body, which makes the bird look several times larger than it really is, and the make-believe "horns" which some owls have—all of these things together suggest that nature intended that frightfulness should be an important part of the owl's outfit.

Then, it is a night bird, and the silence which the softness of its feathery coat imparts to its flight gives it another element of terror. Its prey, consisting largely of rats, mice and other rodents, is unaware of its approach until too late. Courage grows with desperation, but desperation requires time to develop, and the sudden swoop of the noiseless owl, and the instantaneous apparition of its terrifying countenance, allow no time for the paralysis of fear to pass away.

The English owl-fancier from whose living collection these photographs were obtained, makes much of the "beauty" of his strange pets. Their feathers often are beautiful on account of their exquisite texture, and sometimes they possess attractive colors and combinations of colors, such as dark brown, golden brown, gray and deep black, marble white, and snowy white.

Yet, upon the whole, the beauty of an owl resembles the quaintness of that odd-faced flower, the pansy, which seems to stare at you out of a countenance whose features were conceived in a spirit of mockery or burlesque.

The owl in captivity cannot be weaned from its love of darkness—as, indeed, could not be expected, in view of the structure of its eyes, which are expressly made for seeing at night, and are almost useless in daylight.

Accordingly, an indispensable feature of the aviary in which they are kept is a dark chamber into which they can retire. Still, notwithstanding their natural wildness, some owls get to like being fondled and stroked, and recognize their owners, but they will fight furiously on occasion.

Considerable difficulty has been encountered in enabling some of the owls such as the magnificent eagle-owl, to breed in the aviary. They take to nesting easily in a draught, but can be fed without much trouble, provided they are furnished frequently with flesh having the fur and feathers on; otherwise their digestion becomes upset.

They like rabbits, kittens, mice, sparrows, cockchafers, stag-beetles, and other similar things, and they are great water drinkers. If owls could be kept about a house without being confined they might be superior to cats as destroyers of rats and mice.

The Biography of a Sinner

Vera Plays a Part in Encouraging the Attentions of Norton Gregory.

By ANN LISLE

Copyright, 1910, International News Service.

I got too much discipline at home—I had to tell lies to have any freedom, and as I always lied as a matter of course and took other people's happiness away from them even as I had stolen my own surreptitiously from father.

When Norton and I drew up at our gate, father and Len were just turning in. Father stopped and spoke to Norton very affably. "Did you give my little girl a lift?" said he.

"Yes, sir." Norton had an old-fashioned reverence for his elders, and it won father's liking for him at once. But it rather disgusted me. I did not like that "Yes, sir."

Norton went on. "And if I may, Mr. Sheldon, I'm going to take Vera over to Silver Lake tomorrow. I'll call for her at two and have her home before supper if you insist, but I'd like to stay out there and have some of Mrs. Johnson's waffles if you give us permission.

I felt a sudden respect for Norton for the smooth way he got around father. It did not occur to me that Norton might have been an equally smooth way of getting around daughter!

At the supper table that night father turned to me rather jocularly. "Norton Gregory is a fine fellow, Vera. He's making his fifteen hundred at the bank and his father's son is naturally in line for promotion with his uncle, the president.

"He's the best catch in Rockbrooke. Now forget all your nonsense about professors and romances in a cottage and make up to Sylvester Gregory's nephew."

"It won't do her much good, Dad. Norton's pretty badly gone over that little red-cheeked Barnes girl. She's pretty and wise and a prim little Puritan like our Vera wouldn't find it such an easy job cutting her out. Look out or you'll get your fingers burned Vee," laughed Len sarcastically.

I tossed my head. All my pride of conquest was aroused. Everything shrewd and calculating in my ambitious, high strung nature was stirred. "My fingers burned! At least I'm not trying to cut out anybody in my own family!"

That shot told. Len muttered something angrily and left the table. I expected a reproof from father, for he, too, had wanted Mildred to like Len rather than Rex. I looked over to Rex and he just moved his lips so I could distinguish what he was saying. "Bully for you."

Father glared at me for a moment, but instead of ordering me from the room as I had expected, he said a little bit sternly, "You have actually seem to dislike Leonard. You must learn to control your unruly tongue. Men don't admire a woman who's sharp and irritable. I thoroughly approve of your having out with Norton Gregory. But, of course, I couldn't consent to your staying out late. However, we can arrange to have our own supper half an hour later tomorrow night, so you needn't be back till six-thirty."

THE ESCORT DISAPPOINTED

Norton was very disappointed because I could not stay and have some of Mrs. Johnson's waffles. "Perhaps she'll give us some for tea," said he. "We could have tea at five and be back by seven. Are you game, Vera?"

I decided very quickly that I would tell father that Norton's horse had cast a shoe and that we had been delayed half an hour at the smithy's. It occurred to me suddenly that Norton was all the more eager to have me with him when he found out that father wasn't entirely acquiescent and that I couldn't stay until late in the evening.

But I saw that he was just a little too dashed and cast down by my curt refusal, and that my conceding the half hour until 7 o'clock delighted him.

I was fairly clever at psychology and I decided quickly to take advantage of other people's weaknesses whenever I discovered them. I made a mental note that evidently men liked neither the easily attainable nor the entirely unattainable, but rather the difficult for which they had to struggle.

So when Norton invited me to go with him again on Sunday, I explained that father never let any of us out for meals on Sunday, but that if he'd like to come to tea I'd make him some of my best beaten biscuits and chicken salad.

"Oh, I don't like Sunday night suppers with the whole family around, Vera," said Norton. "Couldn't you get out for a little while—a couple of hours say?"

A TEMPTING BAIT

"No, I couldn't, Norton. That's a law of the Medes and Persians. But I think you'd find my chicken salad and rolls almost delicious enough to take away the dry flavor of Sunday night supper. To make sure though—I'll throw in a cocoanut cake for good measure. It was cocoanut you always chose at Corinne's parties, wasn't it?"

In a moment I knew I had made one wrong move — speaking of Corinne's parties had reminded Norton of Myra, but I decided to turn that to my own advantage by discounting Myra as a foe not to be feared.

"Myra Barnes makes awfully good chocolate cake, but I like cocoanut better, don't you, Norton?" I added quite casually.

Oh, yes, my methods were crude! I agree to that, but a clever woman of the world might have known far more subtle ways of getting Norton Gregory's interest, but if they had been too subtle they might have been over his head. Mine just reached his heart—not to mention his stomach!

I spent all of Sunday getting ready for my first tea party. I persuaded Nellie to wait on the table in black dress and white apron and cap, and I got mother to let me have all her company silver cloth. Rex gaily offered to contribute some roses for a centrepiece, and Len actually helped me polish the silver.

The difference in their ideas on helping marked the difference between my two brothers. The red roses Rex brought me put me in a flutter of joy over his thoughtfulness and the elegance with which my table would glow.

The picture of the red roses against the white tablecloth and the old walnut of our dining-room buoyed me up through all the day's work. It scarcely occurred to me to be grateful to Len for his piece of energy his polishing that silver meant to me.

A CAREFUL SUPPER

I planned out my supper very carefully. Beside the chicken salad and rolls, which were to be my piece de resistance, there must be other dainties. It isn't altogether easy to plan a Sunday night supper for which no supplies have been laid in on Saturday night, but I managed very nicely.

"For dessert there was to be the cocoanut cake and a steaming cup of coffee with thick cream. I didn't propose to detract from the flavor of my cocoanut cake by serving it with any fruit or sauce which might take from it its rightful place in the centre of the stage.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A TERRIBLE BLUNDER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen and have been seeing a young man of twenty-two for more than a year. He thinks the world of me, and I love him dearly. My parents dislike him and will not allow him in our house. He dissipated when we first met, but gave it up for me. Once he did drink too much, but he said he was sorry. Mother will not forgive or trust him, and I see him against her wishes, although she knows I see him. I have promised to marry him when I am eighteen. I have a good home and my parents say I need not see why I should spoil both our lives.

M. A. B.

I THINK you are making a terrible blunder. You are very young and are yielding to an unworthy infatuation for a man whose character your mother's wisdom enables her to gauge. If you marry this man you are likely to wreck your life and to break your mother's heart in the process. Why not put him on probation for two years? If by the time you are twenty he has made a place for himself in the world and justified you in your faith in him, then you will have a right to ask your parents to reverse their judgment of him. Nothing that you tell me of this man impresses me with the feeling that he is worthy of a fine girl's love or faith. A man who reverts to his habit of drunkenness whenever he is unhappy is a weakling who is likely to get drunk and abuse his wife if he happens to lose his position and things go wrong at home. Your mother is thinking of your good, and I am afraid if you disobey her you will regret it bitterly some day. Lives do not spoil as easily as you seem to think. If you do not see this man for a while I am convinced you will forget him.

WHAT ARE YOUR FEELINGS?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-one, and have been going out with a man about fourteen years older than I am. My friends say he is too old for me, but he shows all respect towards me.

LULU B.

IT is quite possible that at twenty-one you are mature enough to find a man of thirty-five a thoroughly congenial companion. If your parents do not object you would be very foolish to listen to the unasked criticisms of your friends. Dont you know your own mind? If you are fond of this man and happy when in his society why should you discontinue seeing him?

Who Smoked the First Pipe?

Who smoked the first pipe? Of course you will reply, Sir Walter Raleigh, but this seems open to doubt, according to G. L. Apperson in his social history of smoking. It has been stated that Captain William Middleton, of Myddelton (son of Richard Middleton, Governor of Denbigh Castle), a Captain Price and a Captain Koet were the first who smoked publicly in London.

Another Elizabethan who is often said to have smoked the first pipe in England is Ralph Lane, the first Governor of Virginia, who went home with Drake in 1586. Lane is said to have given Sir Walter Raleigh an Indian pipe, and to have shown him how to use it.

The truth probably is that, whoever actually smoked the first pipe, it was Raleigh who brought the practice into common use. Long before his death in 1618 it had become fashionable in all ranks of society. Raleigh is said to have smoked a pipe on the morning of his execution, before he went on the scaffold.

In December, 1911, a curiously shaped pipe was put up for sale described as that which Raleigh smoked "on the scaffold." The pipe in question was said to have been given by the doomed man to Bishop Andrewes, in whose family it remained for many years, and it was stated to have been in the family of his executioner, who sent it for sale, for some 200 years.

The pipe was of wood, constructed in four pieces of strange shape, rudely carved with dogs' heads and faces of Indians.

According to legend, it had been presented to Raleigh by the Indians, the auctioneer remarked that unfortunately a parchment document about the pipe was lost some years ago, and declared, "If we could only produce the parchment, the pipe would fetch $2,500." In the end, however, it was sold for $375.

Good Housekeeping Recipes

Good food properly cooked goes far toward insuring health and long years. As much depends on the cooking, however, as on the food itself. The following recipes have been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, and are republished here by special arrangement with that publication, the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine.

All measurements are level, standard half-pint measuring cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons being used. Sixteen level tablespoonfuls equal a half-pint. Quantities are sufficient for six people unless otherwise stated. Flour is sifted once before measuring.

Dried Apricot Ice Cream

One-half pound dried apricots, one quart rich cold milk, one and three-quarter cupfuls sugar, one cupful double cream, or undiluted evaporated milk if desired.

Soak the apricots overnight, drain, add water to cover, boil gently till soft, and rub through a sieve. Add sugar and chill; then stir in the milk very cold or it may curdle the mixture. Freeze in three parts ice to one of salt. This amount makes two quarts. If desired richer add the one cupful double cream or evaporated milk. But the first mixture will be smooth.

May Fruit Salad

Six slices fresh canned pineapple, one large orange, one banana, six strawberries, honey salad dressing, sprigs of fresh mint.

Wash and crisp the mint, arrange stem ends toward the centre, on individual salad plates. Place a slice of pineapple on each bit of mint, on this put a slice of orange, then a layer of banana sliced into discs. Pour over it salad dressing and top with a strawberry. If fresh pineapple is used it should be sprinkled with sugar and allowed to stand in a cold place for at least an hour.

Endive Salad

One head endive, two slices bacon, one tablespoonful sugar, one tablespoonful vinegar, one tablespoonful water.

Dice the bacon and fry till crisp. Add the sugar, vinegar and water to the bacon and fat, stir thoroughly. Pour over the endive, which should be cleaned, dried and cut into inch-strips.

"Different" Dried Beef

One-half pound dried beef, four to six bananas (not overripe), three tablespoonfuls bacon drippings.

Heat the bacon fat in a frying pan and add the dried beef (unfreshened), picked into small pieces. Frizzle for two or three minutes, then transfer the beef to a hot platter and put the bananas cut in halves crosswise and then lengthwise in the frying pan. Do not allow them to cook, but turn almost immediately, letting them stand only long enough to heat through. Arrange around the beef.

Not in the Morning

Husband. "There's one thing I can say for myself, anyway—I have risen by my own efforts."

Wife. "Never in the morning, John. I notice that it takes two alarm clocks and all the members of the household to get you up."

The one safe way to wash difficult things

Get together all the precious possessions of the family, too valuable to trust to ordinary soap and water, and wash them the Lux way.

Mrs. Barker says: "I use Lux for unusual things which you would never dare to try to wash with any other soap. For instance, I washed my silk lampshades in the bathtub with Lux, and they came out in absolutely perfect condition."—Mrs. J. R. Barker, Cambridge, Mass.

Lux cannot injure anything which pure water alone won't hurt.

Being Sorry for Yourself

An Exquisite Luxury to Which Women Especially Are Addicted

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Sympathy is a very splendid thing. But it is dangerous when you bestow it on others and weakening when you administer it to yourself in large doses.

Many of us have a very good time with our sorrows and miseries. We hug them to ourselves—and actually enjoy them.

Who doesn't remember the time when, as a child, punishment, which seemed unjust was meted out and he lay sobbing on his bed planning his own funeral and his weeping and wailing that would go on when he was too late. Oh, the luxury of that misery!

Grown older and more voluble the child flings out at some one who hurts him. "You'll be sorry when I'm not here any more"—planning the while to run away from persecution and being so sorry for the poor little misunderstood self he visions.

Grown to manhood, that child is probably too busy to be sorry for himself very often. But grown to womanhood his twin sister has a dulcet in the doubtful pleasures of self-pity far too frequently.

It is against the morbid joys of self-pity that I want to warn women.

I read a very lovely little verse not long ago. Its musical expression charmed me. Here it is read it over and notice how it lilts—and then read it again and see what a perfect example it is of the thing I criticise.

"When I am dead and over me
bright April
Shakes out her rain-drenched hair,
Though you should lean above me
broken hearted,
I shall not care.

"I shall have peace, as leafy trees are peaceful
When rain bends down the bough,
And I shall be more silent and cold-hearted
Than you are now."

An exquisite bit of verse that—and an exquisite illustration of what a good time we have being sorry for ourselves.

What a useless performance self-pity is! If one could talk to the lady in the lyric, how one would like to say: Cry dear Madam, why break your heart about this cruel and cruel person who has not the inclination to love you when you are living and whose notice you only hope to get when he mourns your death. You can't have any fun out of that notice; so why not forget it and proceed now to live and be happy and useful?"

It's always like that. Being sorry for yourself leads you to sit hopelessly by, visioning how the people who have abused you will grieve some day over their failure to appreciate you.

Being sorry for yourself is a very expensive luxury. You indulge in it and squander interest everything which might lead you to action and to a forceful course in the world where neither you nor any one else would have cause to pity you.

Don't ever sit still and indulge in an orgy of weeping over your misfortunes. Instead, get up and throw them off. Refuse to be miserable. Be ashamed to be miserable. You can the very minute you stop being sorry for yourself and are disgusted with yourself for sitting still and feeling persecuted.

Cadum Ointment has proved a blessing to thousands who have suffered for years from irritating, stubborn and disfiguring skin troubles, such as eczema, pimples, itch, sores, cuts, burns, rash, blotches, scaly skin, chafing, scabs, ringworm, eruptions, etc.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, there having been a reaction during the second hour. The market was quite active during the morning. A number rallied a little after the late forenoon raid. Bears were not particularly aggressive. The weakness was confined to spots. Largest losses were sustained by a few munition issues.

Declines at 12 o'clock included Anaconda ⅝, Tennessee Copper 2¼, Inspiration, ex-dividend, ⅛, Chino ⅝, Utah Copper ⅛, U. S. Steel ¼, American Can ½, Lackawanna Steel 2¼, American Locomotive 1, Baldwin 2⅝, Crucible 3⅝, Industrial Alcohol 1½, Chandler 1½, Canadian Pacific 1½, Southern Pacific ¼, Reading ⅝, Lehigh Valley ½, Baltimore & Ohio ¼ and Union Pacific ⅛.

Among gains were American Smelting ⅛, American Zinc ⅛, Butte & Superior 1½, Maxwell 1⅝, Studebaker ½, Willys-Overland ⅝, Marine preferred ¼ and Kennecott ⅜. Mexican Petroleum was unchanged.

The Boston market followed New York upward in the first hour, with Atlantic Gulf & West Indies common becoming strong for awhile. Business increased on the advance. The local list weakened later and prices ruled lower here by noon. American Zinc retained part of its gain and Butte & Superior was up also. Noon declines included Gulf common 1, U. S. Smelting 1, Osceola 1, Quincy ½, Copper Range ⅝, United Fruit ½ and New Haven ⅝.

Among gains were American Zinc ⅛, Butte & Superior ⅛, Granby, ex-dividend, ⅛, North Butte ⅛, Old Dominion ⅛ and Gulf preferred ½.

On the Boston Curb trading was quiet. Issues to advance during the morning included Boston & Montana, Fortuna, Majestic and National Zinc. Among those to recede were First National, Earl Eagle and United Verde. Fortuna, Rilla and First National were the most active.

At the opening in New York bears were cautious, and there was no selling pressure. Stocks ruled a shade higher, while the list was searched for weak spots. Selling of Industrial Alcohol on a considerable scale was resumed. It was off two points soon. A number of other stock issues receded. Studebaker, which with Marine preferred opened at a point advance, soon lost its gain. The tightening of money is said to be a factor in the liquidation which has been going on this week. Nervousness featured the trading situation. The public is holding off. Bears continued to be more or less hesitant during the first hour, and within a few minutes there was enough covering of shorts to improve the market tone. Before 11 o'clock there had been a rally, and the majority of issues showed gains. Marine preferred, Studebaker and Mexican Petroleum were especially strong.

American Zinc was the most active issue at the start in Boston and shaded. The local market was dull. Gulf common transactions were in small lots. It advanced. Mohawk was the strongest copper in early trading.

LYNN MAN KILLED BY TROLLEY CAR

James McCarthy, sixty, of Boston street, Lynn, a widower, was instantly killed in Western avenue, Lynn, when run down by a Boston-bound electric car.

Bones of 68 Horned Giants Dug up at Tioga Point, Pa.

Binghamton, N. Y., July 14.—Professor A. B. Skinner of the American Museum, Professor W. K. Morehead of the Phillips-Andover Academy, and Dr. George Donohue have uncovered an Indian mound at Tioga Point, which promises rich additions to Indian lore.

In the mound uncovered were found the bones of sixty-eight men which are believed to have been buried 700 years ago.

The average height of these men was seven feet, while many were much taller.

On some of the skulls, two inches above the forehead, were protuberances of bone, evidently horns, that had been there since birth.

WAR OFF, T. R. QUITS RAISING OWN ARMY

New York, July 14.—Colonel Roosevelt announced here that he has temporarily abandoned his plan to raise a division of 20,000 men for Mexican service, for the reason that there is no war, actual or threatening. Through Regis H. Post, his recruiting officer, he announced that the men, equipment and everything else were ready. As the division was to be raised "only in the event of war," he said, the idea had been given up.

England Faces Eternal Infamy in Putting Casement to Death

"ENGLAND the oligarchy, England the evil rich man, will perish by violence as Venice died. England the people is immortal."

One recalls at this hour these words of the great French seer, Victor Hugo, written more than half a century ago. As one wonders how soon his prophecy is to come true there stands in the shadow of the gallows, covered with the obloquy of press ridicule and abuse, a man whose letters reveal him to be one of Great Britain's most disinterested and most far-seeing statesmen.

And the civilized world stands aghast in horror.

Is it possible that England, the land which has produced so many thinkers, so many leaders in behalf of democracy, is about to destroy on the scaffold one of the most notable of its sons?

If this be true, then the savagery of war can go no further.

Will Lloyd George and the men who have stood in Parliament for ideals of democracy permit such an infamy? Or are they, too, the victims of the spirit of savagery which seems to have overtaken the world, fearing to face this insensate Frankenstein which the blood lust of Europe has conjured up for its own destruction?

Reading the letters of Sir Roger Casement, written before and during the war, and before his own life stood in peril, we have revealed to us a man whom the whole world would have remembered if he had been one of the American statesmen who struggled for the liberty of mankind in 1776.

Reading these Casement letters, written to Poultney Bigelow, we find our American eyes blinded with hot indignation that the civilization of today permits such a man to stand in the shadow of the gallows.

Behind this man, who has been struggling disinterestedly and far-sighted for his country and his fellow-citizens, we seem to see the forms of Franklin and Jefferson and Washington outlined upon a scaffold, ropes placed about their necks and the drop ready to be sprung.

And as today England would mourn the outrage of having hanged such men as Washington and Franklin, so she will, in the not distant future, in sackcloth and ashes, bow her head in shame if she perpetrates the outrage upon civilization which the murder of Roger Casement would be.

Reading his letters, one wonders if the American Revolution produced a finer type of statesman, working more disinterestedly and more loyally for the people of his land, than Roger Casement.

And his land, an essential part of the British empire, is notable for the distinguished men it has furnished to the thought and development both of the empire and of civilization itself.

England has produced in this war no finer type than Roger Casement. Put him alongside England's greatest and compare his studious thought in behalf of his countrymen, his sacrifice of all personal comfort and private interests and his magnificent courage when face to face with death.

Who of her statesmen will England place by his side to match him?

And this thoughtful brain, this great heart, this generous manhood, this splendid self-sacrificing courage England proposes to extinguish upon a scaffold. A hundred generations would not suffice to remove the stigma of such an infamy from England's escutcheon. The hanging of Roger Casement will not only give Englishmen cause for shame, but it will blacken eternally the fame of every English statesman now in power who failed to raise his hand in protest.

America should recall the hour when her own sons, fighting for our liberties and for world recognition of democracy, stood in the shadow of an English scaffold.

America herself owes it to the memory of Washington and the signers of the Declaration to utter a protest that will reverberate around the world, giving courage to people struggling for freedom and making clear how the civilization of the future would regard the hanging of Roger Casement.

These extracts from Roger Casement's clear-visioned letter deserve thoughtful reading by Americans:

"The only place I shall end in will be jail—a British jail—for Irish 'felony.' Of course, if I went out with murder in my heart against the Germans, who have never wronged Ireland, I'd be a splendid 'patriot,' but because I want my poor, brave, credulous countrymen to stay at home, and if they fight at all to fight then for Ireland, I am a traitor. Such is the irony of British 'democracy!' God deliver me from a democracy that feeds in peace itself and stirs up war and desolation wherever its greed, its lust, its appetite call for conflict. It fights always with other men's lives—in other men's hands—with ravaged and sacked cities of other countries. The day England herself suffers the horrors of invasion and feels war at home we shall have peace abroad—not till then. The task of civilization must be—surely will be—to destroy British immunity from invasion, so that the responsibility for her intrigues abroad and alliances with others to foment war elsewhere shall fall on the shoulders of the principal as well as of his 'allies.'

"If London suffered what London has caused Brussels, Louvain, Liege to suffer, there would be no war in Europe.

"It is because London and all it epitomes of imperial greed and cupidity is immune and feels it can never suffer, that England feels it can never suffer, that England has forgotten this war of horror against Germany.

"I heard it plotted and planned for years. I saw it designed steadily in the F. O. and I have again and again warned them there of where they were driving. They meant to drive there. They knew it was a crime, but—Delenda est Carthago! Germany's crime was German higher efficiency in the walks of international commerce and sea affairs. The day she decided that she, too, had a future on the seas, that day her doom was decreed.

"England fights for one thing only—her interests as the world emporium.

"All that I ever did that was unselfish or chivalrous in public life—and I have striven to be both in all my public service—has been done with the image of Ireland before me. I worked for Ireland always—for Ireland and the ideals of my own people when I went to find Leopold on the Congo and Julio Arana on the Putumayo.

"And please God before I die I'll do something still for Ireland!

"Until there is freedom at sea, equality of sea rights for all, equal opportunity, and navalism recognized as a greater foe to humanity than militarism there can be no peace to mankind; no security against war—but an an eternal pledge that war to break that unjust monopoly must surely come, and come again, until the mastery of the seas is dissolved in the neutrality of the ocean."

City Dog a Menace to the Public Health

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

PART TWO.

NOT the least undesirable feature connected with the city dog is the distressing spirit of dogolatry and animal worship which so many dog-keeping women seem to fall into—kissing and slobbering over the dirty, hairy, gutter-loving little beasts in public and entreating them to "Come to muzzer." "Was it a naughty boy!" "Does it love its mamma, darling?" and other nauseating gush of this description. Any man whose wife alludes to herself in public as a puppy dog's "mother" ought to be entitled to a divorce (ipso facto) without further argument.

It has been seriously proposed by Chancellors of the Exchequer of various countries that every woman keeping a pet dog, particularly one with silk blankets, jewelled collar, embroidered handkerchiefs and fur boots and a maid and a valet to wait on it, ought to be taxed every year double what she spends on the little beast for the benefit of Mothers' Pensions or the education of orphans. And a license fee of at least $100 a year upon all toy and lap-dogs, to go toward the support of poor children, would be an admirable measure from every point of view, both social and hygienic.

Of course, for those who have no children to care for and lavish their affections upon, or whose children have grown up and left them, dogs are often a great comfort and company for hours of loneliness, but they ought not to be allowed to monopolize the affection and the duty and the help in need which we owe to our human fellow beings. There is seldom any trouble in finding plenty of human beings, particularly women and children, lonely or disabled by sickness or misfortune, who would be most grateful for personal sympathy and friendly help if a little trouble were taken to look for them.

In fact, the lap-dog habit is often a combination of ingrowing emotionalism and self-indulgence and intellectual laziness. The little fuzzy-heads can be relied upon to love and sympathize with you, whether you deserve it or not, at less expense than you can get any human being to and without putting you to any mental or moral strain whatever. It's a great consolation and luxury to have some one who has no better sense than to worship you blindly, even if he has a monopoly of the cult. That is one of the charms of owning a dog of any size, while children are so painfully outspoken.

Only a few weeks ago one of my professional colleagues was talking with a lady who was describing to him in glowing terms the wonders and comforts and conveniences of a beautiful new woman's club building which had just been completed. There were, of course, reception rooms and tea rooms and card rooms and a billiard room and gymnasium, and, as a last detail of thoughtfulness and convenience, a dog room, supplied with beautifully equipped kennels, running water and pasteurized milk, and an attendant to keep their puppyships amused and furnish them with cake and cream and other light refreshments as required.

"Ah!" said the doctor, "how delightful! And have you also some nice little kennels for babies, where they can be taken care of by certified nurses while their mothers are engaged on committees?"

The lady stared at him in astonishment. "Why, no!" she said, "of course not. We don't allow babies in the club!" Comment is superfluous.

The Youngsters

By William F. Kirk

ONE is spending the Summer serenely
In a village way off in the hills,
With a mother devoted and queenly
In a circle of fashions and frills.
The breeze and the bees and the flowers
Give their wonderful show every day,
And the rich little boy with a heart full of joy
Is dreaming the Summer away.

Where the other is spending the Summer
There is death in the quivering air,
And for each little tenement comer
There is one for the Harvester's snare.
Ah, surely for these little strangers
Who are beckoned away from Life's ills
There's a Master who waits near the wonderful gates
Of a Meadowland over the hills.

Great Mysteries of Nature and Science

In Many Ways the Nose Is the Most Puzzling in Its Action of All Our Sense Organs—Dogs Have More Wonderful Noses Than Men

By Garrett P. Serviss

"WHAT about the mystery of smell? How does the nose act? The ear and the eye work with vibrations, but how does the nose work? Do minute particles of the odorous substance enter the nose, or are there scent vibrations, or is there another power, on the lines of electricity, which we know nothing about?

"I have read that a bit of dried musk will scent a room for years, and yet the most delicate scale is not able to show that the musk has decreased in weight one particle in all that time.

"The nose seems to me the most delicate and wonderful of our sense organs. Then, look at the marvellous power of the hound, able to follow a scent through a labyrinth of tracks!—M., Chicago."

The opinion of physiologists is that the nerves of smell, the olfactory nerves, are excited by extremely minute particles, either solid or vaporous, given off from odorous substances. What the size of these particles may be is unknown.

Evidently they are far below the scale of ordinary measurements. Many of them may be of molecular dimensions, although sometimes, as in the case of flowers, a visible dust excites the sense of smell, but even then it is probable that the real agents which affect the olfactory nerves are particles below the range of the microscope.

In the cases of the eye and the ear mechanical arrangements exist whose action we can understand, such as lenses bringing the rays of light to a focus, and "hammer" and "anvil" bones transmitting sounds by concussion, but the nose has no machinery of that kind.

It has simply passages and chambers leading directly to assemblages of delicate filaments constituting the olfactory lobes, and the moment the terminals of these nerve filaments are touched by the odorous emanation the sense of smell is produced in the brain.

But the most learned physiologist cannot tell why one set of nerve filaments gives us sight, another hearing and another smell. He knows only the fact.

One of the best proofs that the particles which make the impression of smell are of excessive tenuity has been mentioned by you when you refer to the astonishing persistence of the odor of musk.

Not only will a bit of musk of visible size scent a room for an indefinite period of years with no apparent diminution, but rooms that have formerly been inhabited by persons accustomed to use musk, and in which no tangible or visible trace of the substance can be found, and which have been repeatedly swept and aired, continue to be filled with the peculiar odor, notwithstanding all attempts to get rid of it.

The emanations seem to cling to the walls and to give forth their ceaseless streams of atoms, like bubbles rising from an endlessly renewed glass of champagne. It would appear that odorous substances shed off these particles by a process resembling evaporation.

One is also reminded of the way in which radium acts, continually shooting off immeasurably minute particles formed by the disintegration of its own atoms.

All substances whatever give off emanations capable of affecting the sense of smell, but only a few appear distinctly odorous to us, for, notwithstanding the fact that it seems to you to be the most wonderful of our sense organs the human nose is really a very imperfect instrument of its kind.

In the dog the olfactory lobes are much larger than in man, and the superhuman power which the hound possesses of detecting and following trails of scent absolutely insensible to us is due to the keener sensitiveness of his nerves of smell.

On account of his more perfect olfactory perceptions the world must appear, in some ways, quite a different place to the dog from what it appears to us. It is a world of smells as well as of sights and sounds. His ability to concentrate the attention of his nose upon some one particular scent, crossed by and intermingled with hundreds of others, is a very remarkable gift, like that of the musician who can follow a single strain, or note, of music through a blare of confused sounds.

There can hardly be the slightest doubt that the dog recognizes human beings by their individual odor. Even we are aware that certain animals, such as bears, lions, horses, cattle, etc., have characteristic odors by which we can distinguish between species, although not between individuals.

But to the higher olfactory sense of the dog individual men and women are often, if not always, distinguishable from each other. The dog knows the smell of his master as well as he knows his face, and perhaps better.

No one who has been much with an intelligent dog can avoid receiving, occasionally, from the glances and conduct of his canine companion the impression that the dog thinks his master is extremely stupid in not noticing the telltale odors that plainly reveal to the four-legged animal interesting things and situations of which the two-legged one is utterly oblivious.

Below the sense of smell, or above it, if you prefer, there probably exists in certain animals, such as insects, a still finer power of perception, which may really rest upon an electrical sense.

Watch the conduct of ants or of bees, or wasps, or beetles, and you will see many things which will be likely to lead you to think that those creatures know much of their surroundings by means which neither touch, sight, sound, smell nor taste could supply.

The most absurd error of which we can be guilty is the assumption that our five senses could give us complete knowledge of the world around us even if they were perfect in their kind. They are at best but five loop-holes in the walls of a prison.

Thoughts by the Way

The lure of good wages at the starting of a career has caused many a young man to reach middle age as an unskilled worker whose services command little more than he received when he first went to work.

Any line of work which is easy to learn will naturally be overcrowded. With many applicants and competition there is bound to be lower remuneration.

When a young man starts out in life he should take into consideration the financial side of his employment and consider the prospects from the standpoint of a life work.

The boy who is unprepared begins a career with a handicap, but it is better to work for lower wages under a man who knows his business thoroughly than to get higher wages under a man incompetent as an instructor.

High Society in Heaven

The Rev. Dr. Horace C. Stanton explains, in next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN, why he believes there will be different degrees of happiness there.
